Instructing on this offense

Content of instruction

In general

Instructing on "course of conduct"

Sufficiency of evidence to convict

In general

Sufficiency to prove "course of conduct," i.e., "maintaining a visual or physical proximity to a person . . . on 2 or more calendar days"

Sufficiency to prove that "actor's acts induce[d] fear in [victim]"

State not required to prove that defendant's conduct was not protected by constitutional right to freedom of speech or to peaceably assemble

Penalty or punishment for this offense

Determining penalty that applies when course of conduct constituting stalking commences prior to date of penalty change, but concludes after that date

When penalty change occurs before all elements of charged stalking offense are present

Is this continuing offense?

Appropriate unit of prosecution

In prosecution under Wis. Stat. § 940.32(2m)(a), prior conviction is not akin to penalty enhancer for being repeater, which is decided by court, but rather is element of offense that needs to be submitted to jury and proved beyond reasonable doubt

In trial of prosecution under Wis. Stat. § 940.32(2m)(a), adducing evidence of prior conviction (e.g., by way of stipulation when defendant is ready to stipulate to prior conviction's existence) and submission of question of existence of prior conviction to jury for its determination is permissible

In trial of prosecution under Wis. Stat. § 940.32(3)(b), adducing evidence of prior conviction involving same victim (e.g., by way of stipulation when defendant is ready to stipulate to prior conviction's existence), and submission of question of existence of prior conviction to jury for its determination, are permissible

Legislative history of statute creating this offense

Wis. Stat. § 940.32 creates three distinct classifications of stalking offenses, depending on presence of aggravating factors
33.7788 When defendant charged under § 940.32(2m)(b), "course of conduct" is not limited to conduct that occurred after previous conviction .......................................................... 33-38

35.49443 Sufficiency to prove that defendant was released from custody on bond .............................................................................. 35-20
35.49444 Sufficiency to prove that defendant intentionally failed to comply with terms of bond .............................................................................. 35-20
35.49445 Sufficiency to prove defendant violated condition prohibiting consumption of alcohol or controlled substance .................................................................................. 35-20
35.49446 Sufficiency to prove violation of condition that defendant not commit crime ................................................. 35-20
35.49447 Proving violation of term of bail bond that defendant shall not commit any crime does not require proof of conviction of crime defendant committed (see sec. 35.49413) .......................................................... 35-20
35.49448 When defendant's guilt of bail jumping is predicated on finding of guilt of another crime, and that finding is overturned, evidence is, as matter of law, insufficient to support defendant's conviction (see sec. 35.49465) .............................................................................. 35-21
35.49449 When term of bail bond allegedly violated is that defendant shall not commit any crime, jury's finding of not guilty of crime that defendant allegedly committed does not render evidence insufficient to convict of bail jumping or otherwise require setting aside of bail jumping conviction .......................................................................................... 35-21
35.4945 Appropriate unit of prosecution ............................................................. 35-21
35.49451 When single act violates same condition in multiple bonds, multiple counts are appropriate .......... 35-21
35.49452 When multiple violations of single bond are committed at same time and place, multiple counts are appropriate .............................................................................. 35-21
When prosecution based on failure to comply, in two cases, with condition of single bond that covered both cases (e.g. failure to appear at preliminary hearings in two cases when preliminary hearings were scheduled for same time and requirement of appearance at hearings was contained in single bond that covered both cases), multiple counts are appropriate ........................................ 35-21

Other matters ........................................................................................................ 35-21

Propriety of prosecuting for or convicting of both this offense and offense whose commission constituted failure to comply with terms of bail bond: in general .................................................. 35-21

Propriety of prosecuting for or convicting of this offense and offense whose commission constituted failure to comply with terms of bail bond: when other offense committed in another jurisdiction ................................................................. 35-21

Bail bond term that defendant shall not commit any crime includes crimes committed in other jurisdictions (see sec. 35.49414) .................................................. 35-22

Prosecution for violation of condition of release that defendant not consume alcohol does not violate Wis. Stat. § 51.45(1) which declares that intoxicated persons may not be criminally prosecuted because of consumption of alcohol .......... 35-22

When defendant's guilt of bail jumping is predicated on finding of guilt of another crime, and that finding is overturned, evidence is, as matter of law, insufficient to support defendant's conviction ................................................................. 35-22

In determining meaning of condition of bond that defendant allegedly violated, resort to contract principles not appropriate; question is whether prohibition in bond condition itself covered defendant's conduct ................................................................. 35-22

When term of bail bond violated is that defendant shall not commit any crime and jury is given option to consider whether defendant violated term of bail bond by committing lesser-included offense of crime alleged, jury must be provided with alternative verdict finding guilt based on commission of that lesser-included offense .......... 35-22

When term of bail bond allegedly violated is that defendant shall not commit any crime, jury's finding of not guilty of crime that defendant allegedly committed does not render evidence insufficient to convict of bail jumping or otherwise require setting aside of bail jumping conviction (see sec. 35.49449) .................................................. 35-22

36.17231 Sufficiency of evidence to prove possession: in general .................................................. 36-4
36.17232 Sufficiency of evidence to prove possession: presence of controlled substance in one's urine or blood, without more, is insufficient evidence on which to base conviction for possession ........................................ 36-4
36.17233 Sufficiency of evidence to prove defendant knew or believed he was in possession of controlled substance ................................................................................... 36-4
36.17234 Need to prove that defendant knew or believed that he was in possession of controlled substance (see sec. 36.13111) ........................................................................ 36-5
36.17235 No need to prove defendant's knowledge of specific nature of controlled substance possessed (see secs. 36.13112 and 36.13113) ........................................................................ 36-5
36.17236 No need to prove possession of usable amount or other minimum quantity (see sec. 36.1312) ........................................................................ 36-5
36.18 Penalty Or Punishment For Controlled Substances Offenses ............................................. 36-5
36.182 Mandatory minimum sentence; presumptive minimum sentence .......... 36-5
36.1821 When probation imposed for drug offense carrying mandatory minimum sentence of one year or less, imprisonment for that period must be imposed as a condition of probation ........................................................................ 36-5
36.18212 Actual imprisonment must be imposed; monitored home detention not permissible alternative ........................................................................ 36-5
36.1822 Provision making mandatory minimum sentence only a "presumptive minimum sentence" does not apply when mandatory minimum sentence is one year or less and probation is imposed .................................................................................. 36-5

36.1823 When taking plea to drug offense having presumptive minimum sentence, court must establish defendant's understanding of presumptive minimum sentence (see sec. 7.21323) ........................................................................................................ 36-5

36.1824 Provision making minimum sentence only presumptive, not mandatory, does not apply to Wis. Stat. § 961.50, which requires suspension of operating privilege when person convicted of controlled substances offense; that requirement is mandatory (see sec. 36.1851) ........................................................................................................ 36-5

36.1825 Burden of proof with respect to question whether presumptive minimum sentence should be imposed ................................................................. 36-5

36.1826 Calculation of mandatory minimum sentence and its components (i.e., confinement and extended supervision) under truth-in-sentencing ........................................................................ 36-6

36.183 Penalty enhancer for committing offense within 1,000 feet of school premises or other designated building, object, or place ........................................ 36-6

36.1831 Constitutionality of this penalty enhancer .............................................. 36-6

36.1832 Effect of this penalty enhancer on substantive offense .............................. 36-6

36.18322 When this penalty enhancer charged, it becomes element of substantive offense that must be proved at trial beyond reasonable doubt .................................. 36-6

36.1833 Elements of this penalty enhancer ............................................................ 36-6

36.18331 Intent or scienter is not required; this is a strict liability penalty enhancer .................................................................................. 36-6

36.18332 School does not include public university campus ............................. 36-6

36.18333 "Park" includes passive (i.e., undeveloped) park ................................. 36-6

36.1834 Applicability to pending cases of amendment of penalty enhancer from "mandatory" to "presumptive" minimum sentence ................................................................. 36-6

36.1835 When elements of this penalty enhancer are in fact not present, court has no jurisdiction to impose enhanced penalty even though defendant pled guilty to charging document alleging penalty enhancer .................................................................................. 36-6

36.1836 This penalty enhancer is self-executing; prosecutor need do nothing to trigger it and cannot prevent court from invoking it by simply not charging defendant as repeater ........................................ 36-7

36.1837 In prosecutions for possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver, this penalty enhancer applies to a person who possesses the controlled substance with intent to deliver it anywhere, including outside the prohibited zone; an intent to deliver it inside the prohibited zone is not necessary .................................................................................. 36-7
36.1838 In multi-count complaint charging controlled substances offenses with this penalty enhancer, failure to prove penalty enhancer at preliminary examination does not require dismissal of count or preclude charging offense in information .................................................. 36-7
36.1839 State cannot prove this penalty enhancer, or aspect of it, by use of judicial notice .................................................................................................. 36-7

36.184 Penalty enhancer for second or subsequent controlled substances offenses (Wis. Stat. § 961.48, formerly 161.48) ........................................................ 36-7
36.1841 Prior conviction(s) that subjects defendant to this penalty enhancer is not element of offense that must be proved at trial beyond a reasonable doubt .......................................................... 36-7
36.1842 Determining what constitutes prior offense that will render present offense a second or subsequent offense .................................................. 36-7
36.18422 Possession of drug paraphernalia in violation of Wis. Stat. § 961.573 qualifies as prior offense .......................................................... 36-7
36.1843 Proving prior offense ................................................................................. 36-7
36.18432 Admission by plea of guilty to charging document alleging prior offense .......................................................................................... 36-7
36.18433 Remedy when appellate court concludes prior offense not proven .......................................................... 36-8
36.1844 Propriety of enhancing sentence under repeater provision of ch. 961 (formerly ch. 161) (i.e., for committing second or subsequent controlled substances offense) and under general repeater statute (Wis. Stat. § 939.62) .......................................................... 36-8
36.18441 Cannot enhance sentence under repeater provision of ch. 961 and under general repeater statute when both enhancers are based on same prior drug conviction .......................................................................................... 36-8
36.18442 May enhance sentence under repeater provision of ch. 961 and under general repeater statute when each enhancer is based on different prior conviction .......................................................... 36-8
36.1845 When this penalty enhancer is invoked, trial court, in selecting sentence to impose, may consider violation(s) that provided basis for invoking this penalty enhancer .......................................................... 36-8
36.1846 Section 161.48(4)'s exclusion of offenses under sec. 161.41(2r)(a) and (3) sets forth limitation only upon the second and subsequent offense for which defendant is sentenced; the previous offense may be any conviction under ch. 161 .................................................................................................. 36-8
36.1847 In multiple count complaint charging controlled substances offenses with this penalty enhancer, failure to prove penalty enhancer at preliminary examination requires dismissal of count and precludes charging the offense in information .......................................................... 36-8
36.185 Penalty enhancer for defendant previously convicted of "felony drug offense" (21 U.S.C. § 841(b)(1)(A)) (federal penalty enhancer) .......................................................... 36-8
36.1851 Meaning of "felony drug offense" .......................................................... 36-8
36.1851 Is defined exclusively by § 802(44) and does not incorporate § 802(13)'s definition of "felony"; therefore, state drug offense punishable by more than one year qualifies as "felony drug offense," even if state law classifies offense as misdemeanor ................................................................. 36-8

36.186 Requirement that weight of carrier medium be included when determining the appropriate penalty for controlled substances offense ................................................................. 36-9

36.1862 Constitutionality of requirement ...................................................................... 36-9

36.187 Imposing harsher penalty for defendants convicted of dealing cocaine base or crack cocaine than on defendants convicted of dealing cocaine powder .............................................................................................................. 36-9

36.1871 Constitutionality of imposition of harsher punishment .................................. 36-9
36.1872 In sentencing for offenses relating to crack cocaine, federal court is not required to adhere to federal sentencing guidelines' disparity between crack and powder cocaine offenses; guidelines' crack/powder disparity is not effectively mandatory (see sec. 9.1796) ................................................................. 36-9

36.188 Deferral of further proceedings without entering judgment of guilt and conditional discharge and dismissal in case of possession of controlled substance ........................................................................................................... 36-9

36.1882 Does not apply to possession of marijuana ..................................................... 36-9
36.1883 Deferral may be ordered without consent of prosecutor .................................. 36-9

36.189 Other matters ........................................................................................................ 36-9

36.1891 Suspension of operating privilege ................................................................. 36-9

36.18911 Wis. Stat. § 961.438, which makes minimum sentences under controlled substances law only presumptive, not mandatory, does not apply to Wis. Stat. § 961.50, which requires suspension of operating privilege when person convicted of controlled substances offense; that requirement is mandatory ................................................................. 36-9

36.19 Other Problems ......................................................................................................... 36-9

36.191 Definitions relating to controlled substances offenses ...................................... 36-9
36.1911 "Deliver"; "delivery" ......................................................................................... 36-9
36.1912 "Keep"; "keeping" ............................................................................................ 36-10

36.192 Determining appropriate unit of prosecution ..................................................... 36-10

36.1921 When controlled substance possessed on different occasions is from same cache .............................................................................................................. 36-10

36.193 Deferral of further proceedings without entering judgment of guilt and conditional discharge and dismissal in case of possession of controlled substance (see sec. 36.193) .............................................................................................................. 36-10

36.194 Conviction of controlled substance offense after forfeiture of property used in, or representing proceeds from, offense (see sec. 29.7962) ..................... 36-10
36.195 Bar to prosecution for the same act both in this state and under federal law or the law of another state; statutory abrogation of dual sovereignty doctrine with respect to drug offenses (Wis. Stat. § 961.45) ................................................................. 36-10
36.1951 In general ................................................................................................. 36-10
36.1952 Different limitations on successive prosecutions imposed by Wis. Stat. § 939.71 and Wis. Stat. § 961.45 do not violate equal protection of the laws (see sec. 23.694) ......................................................... 36-10
36.1953 Interpretation of "same act" .................................................................... 36-10
36.19531 "Same act" does not mean same offense ................................................ 36-10
36.19532 "Same act" means same conduct .......................................................... 36-10
36.19533 When defendant charged with conspiracy, "same conduct" does not encompass all acts performed in furtherance of conspiracy ........................................................................... 36-10
36.19534 To determine whether "same conduct" is involved, court must ask whether defendant came to "fork in the road" and committed separate volitional act .......................................................... 36-10
36.196 Controlled Substances Act does not allow United States Attorney General to prohibit doctors from prescribing regulated drugs for use in physician-assisted suicide .............................................................................. 36-11
36.197 Controlled Substances Act cannot be read as prohibiting physician-assisted suicide through prescription of controlled substances .......................................................................................... 36-11
36.198 Where harsher punishment imposed on one side of drug transaction (e.g., seller of drug is subject to harsher punishment than purchaser), person subject to less harsh punishment (e.g., purchaser) cannot be made subject to harsher punishment by being deemed aider and abettor of person subject to harsher punishment (e.g., seller) ........................................ 36-11

38.6462 Elements of this offense ............................................................. 38-41
  38.64622 Causing child "to go into any room" ........................................ 38-42
  38.64623 Element of exposure when charge is enticement to commit act of exposure ................................................................. 38-42
  38.64624 Existence of actual child is not element of this offense .......... 38-42
  38.64625 Knowledge of age of victim is not element of this offense ........................................................................................................ 38-42
It is not element of this offense that defendant caused child to go from public place (i.e., safe place) to secluded place (i.e., place of danger); it is sufficient that defendant caused victim to go from already private place (e.g., living room in home) to another private place (e.g., bedroom in home) .......... 38-42

"Causes" child to go into any vehicle, room, etc. ............... 38-42

Probable cause to believe this offense committed .................. 38-42

Sufficiency of showing of probable cause in complaint .................. 38-42

Sufficiency of evidence to establish probable cause at preliminary examination ................................. 38-42

Charging this offense ................................................................. 38-42

Amending charge in information at conclusion of trial to conform to evidence by adding additional acts that defendant intended to commit in vehicle, building, room or secluded place (see sec. 38.64796) ................................................................................... 38-42

Duplicity in charging this offense: when complaint charges both attempt to entice and completed enticement in single count ................................. 38-42

Fact that defendant was on parole and/or violating condition of that parole at time of enticement (see sec. 13.36941) ............................................... 38-43

Instructing on this offense and lesser-included offenses .................... 38-43

Instructing on this offense as offense charged: no need to instruct jury that it must be unanimous with respect to act that the defendant intended to commit in vehicle, building, room or secluded place (see sec. 38.64795) ......................................................... 38-43

Instructing on lesser included offenses in prosecution for this offense: attempt to commit this offense does not exist, so it is not lesser included offense that can be instructed on in prosecution for this offense ................................................................. 38-43

In general ................................................................................. 38-43

Sufficiency to show that defendant caused victim "to go into any room" ............................................................. 38-43

Sufficiency to show that defendant intended to commit proscribed act ........................................................... 38-43

Sufficiency to show exposure when charge is enticement to commit act of exposure ............................... 38-43

Sufficiency to prove that defendant attempted to cause victim to go to secluded place .................................. 38-43

Need not show existence of actual child ........................................ 38-43
38.64677 Need not show that defendant caused child to go from public place (i.e., safe place) to secluded place (i.e., place of danger); it is sufficient that defendant caused victim to go from already private place (e.g., living room in home) to another private place (e.g., bedroom in home) (see sec. 38.64726) ........................................................................... 38-43

38.6468 Other matters ........................................................................... 38-43

38.64681 Attempt to commit this offense does not exist as separate offense, but rather as alternative mode of commission of this offense ..................................................... 38-44

38.64682 Existence of actual child, not agent posing as child, is not element of offense that state must prove (see secs. 38.64712 and 38.64724) ............................... 38-44

38.64683 This crime includes both the attempted and the completed crime ................................................................. 38-44

38.64684 This crime has alternate modes of commission:
causing or attempting to cause ........................................ 38-44

38.64685 Impossibility is not defense to this crime ................. 38-44

38.64686 Mistake as to age of victim is not a defense .......... 38-44

38.64687 Propriety of convicting of this offense as result of Internet sting operation ...................................................... 38-44

38.64688 Duplicity in charging this offense: when complaint charges both attempt to entice and completed enticement in single count (see sec.
38.64742) .............................................................................. 38-44

38.64689 Sufficiency of evidence to provide factual basis for guilty plea to this offense .................................................... 38-44

38.6469 Other matters (cont’d) ......................................................... 38-44

38.64691 Penalty or punishment for offense:
constitutionality of felony status for this offense when underlying object of enticement is only misdemeanor ........................................................................... 38-44

38.64692 Appropriate unit of prosecution: when there is one enticement but intent to commit multiple prescribed acts, multiple counts based on each different act that defendant intended to commit are not appropriate; one enticement can only give rise to prosecution for one count no matter how many different proscribed acts the defendant intends to commit ................................................................. 38-44

38.64693 May convict of this offense and offense of attempted child exploitation ............................................. 38-45

38.64694 Crime of attempt to commit this offense does not exist (see sec. 38.64781) .......................................................... 38-45

38.64695 No need for unanimity with respect to particular act that defendant intended to commit in vehicle, building, room or secluded place ....................................... 38-45

Chapter 39

Inchoate Crimes

39.1 Attempt

39.11 Elements Of Attempt

39.111 In general

39.112 Unequivocal act

39.113 Intervention of third party or other extraneous factor

39.1131 No need to prove

39.1132 Particular factors

39.11321 In general

39.11322 Victim's resistance

39.1133 In cases involving attempted crimes against children, fictitiousness of child may be extraneous factor beyond defendant's control

39.114 Intent

39.1141 In general

39.1142 Intent, under attempt statute, satisfied by either purpose to cause result or knowledge that conduct practically certain to cause result
39.1143 Person cannot attempt to commit crime which does not itself include element of specific intent (see sec. 39.185) ........................................... 39-2

39.115 Must attempt to commit offense enumerated in attempt statute (see sec. 39.182) .................................................................................................................. .. 39-2

39.116 Failure to accomplish crime is not element of offense ........................................... 39-2

39.12 Probable Cause To Believe Attempt Occurred ............................................................................................................................. 39-2

39.161 Sufficiency to show factual basis needed to support guilty plea ......................... 39-2

39.162 Sufficiency to prove guilty beyond a reasonable doubt ........................................... 39-2

39.17 Particular Attempts ................................................................................................................................................................................................................................................................. 39-3

39.171 General principles ................................................................................................................................................................................................................................................................. 39-3

39.1712 Person cannot attempt to commit crime which does not itself include element of specific intent (see sec. 39.185) ........................................... 39-3

39.172 Particular attempts that do and do not exist ................................................................................................................................................................................................................................................................. 39-3

39.1722 Attempted manslaughter (imperfect self-defense) (see sec. 32.2243) ........................................... 39-3

39.1724 Attempted child enticement (see sec. 38.64781) ........................................... 39-3

39.1725 Attempted second degree sexual assault of a child (see secs. 38.62441 and 38.62442) ........................................... 39-3

39.181 Defenses to crime of attempt ................................................................................................................................................................................................................................................................. 39-3

39.1812 Factual impossibility is not defense to crime of attempt ........................................... 39-3

39.182 Only attempts to commit offenses enumerated in attempt statute may be prosecuted as "attempts" ........................................... 39-3

39.183 Can commit attempt even though, under the circumstances, it is impossible to commit substantive crime ........................................... 39-3

39.184 Penalty or punishment for this offense ......................................................................................................................................................................................................................... 39-4

39.1841 Calculating potential punishment when defendant convicted of attempt as repeater under habitual criminality statute (see sec. 31.6273) ........................................... 39-4

39.1842 Under TIS-I, maximum term of confinement for attempt to commit classified felony is one-half of maximum confinement specified for completed crime (see sec. 9.4132) ........................................... 39-4

39.185 Person cannot attempt to commit crime which does not itself include element of specific intent ........................................... 39-4

39.186 Crimes which may and may not be prosecuted as attempts ........................................... 39-4

39.1861 Crime must include element of specific intent (see sec. 39.185) ........................................... 39-4

39.18621 Felony murder (see sec. 32.8151) ........................................... 39-4

39.18622 Manslaughter (heat of passion) (see sec. 32.21511) ........................................... 39-4
39.18623 Manslaughter (imperfect self-defense) (see sec. 32.2243) ........................................ 39-4
39.18624 Child enticement (see sec. 38.64781) ......................................................... 39-4

39.187 Defendant may be charged with both an attempt to commit a particular offense and a conspiracy to commit that offense ........................................ 39-4
39.188 May defendant be convicted of both an attempt to commit a particular offense and a conspiracy to commit that offense? ...................................... 39-4

39.1891 Crime of attempt is not lesser included offense of crime of conspiracy ........................................ 39-4
39.1892 Meaning of "unequivocally" in solicitation and attempt statutes is the same (see sec. 39.375) .......................................... 39-4

39.19 Other matters (cont'd) .......................................................................................................... 39-5
39.191 Common law definition of crime of attempt .......................................................... 39-5
39.192 Sufficiency of indictment to charge attempt .......................................................... 39-5

39.2 Conspiracy ............................................................................................................................................. 39-5

39.21 Elements Of Conspiracy ............................................................................................................. 39-5
39.212 Overt act in furtherance of conspiracy .............................................................................. 39-5
39.213 Agreement ......................................................................................................................... 39-5
39.2132 Need for agreement with at least one other person ................................................................. 39-5
39.2133 Conspirator need not agree to commit or facilitate each and every part of substantive offense ................................................................. 39-5
39.2134 Express agreement not necessary; tacit understanding of shared goal is sufficient ............................................................................................................... 39-5
39.214 Conspirator may be liable for conspiracy even though he was incapable of committing substantive offense ................................................................. 39-5
39.215 No need to prove that persons with whom defendant conspired shared intent that crime should be committed (see sec. 39.287) ................................................................. 39-5
39.216 No need to show "stake in the venture" or "stake in the outcome" ................................................. 39-5
39.217 Person can be party to conspiracy even if he joins it after object of conspiracy becomes impossible to achieve (e.g., when police have frustrated drug conspiracy's objective by seizing drugs members have agreed to distribute) ............................................................................................................... 39-6
39.218 No need to prove that crime that is subject of conspiracy was committed ............................................................................................................... 39-6

39.22 Probable Cause To Believe Conspiracy Occurred ................................................................. 39-6
39.23 Charging Conspiracy ................................................................................................................. 39-6
39.24 Admission Of Evidence ................................................................................................................. 39-6
39.25 Instructing On Conspiracy ................................................................................................................. 39-6
39.26 Sufficiency Of Evidence To Establish Conspiracy ........................................................................ 39-6

39.261 Sufficiency to show factual basis needed to support guilty plea ................................................................. 39-6
39.2611 Sufficiency to show that defendant had agreement with at least one other person ............................................................................................................... 39-6
39.262 Sufficiency to prove guilty beyond a reasonable doubt ............................................................................................................... 39-6
39.2622 Conspiratorial agreement may be demonstrated by circumstantial evidence ............................................................................................................... 39-6
39.2623 When defendant sells items that are not illegal to sell or possess to person who he believes or knows will use them to commit crime

39.27 Liability Of Co-Conspirator For Associate's Acts

39.28 Other Matters

39.281 When conspiracy charge appropriate

39.282 Single or multiple conspiracy

39.283 Commencement and termination of conspiracy

39.2831 In general

39.2832 Commencement of conspiracy

39.2833 Termination of conspiracy

39.28331 In general

39.28332 Conspiracy does not end automatically when object of conspiracy becomes impossible to achieve

39.284 Overt act in furtherance of conspiracy is not element of conspiracy to commit drug offense under federal Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act

39.285 Crime of conspiracy not applicable to agreement between buyer and seller for delivery of small amount of controlled substance for personal use by buyer

39.286 Venue for this offense

39.287 Wisconsin's conspiracy statute codifies "unilateral" approach to inchoate crime of conspiracy; no need to prove that persons with whom defendant conspired shared intent that crime should be committed

39.288 Defendant may be charged with both conspiracy to commit particular offense and an attempt to commit that offense

39.289 May defendant be convicted of both conspiracy to commit particular offense and an attempt to commit that offense?

39.29 Other matters (cont'd)

39.291 Crime of conspiracy is not lesser-included offense of crime of attempt

39.292 Defenses to this offense

39.2921 Impossibility is not a defense

39.293 Appropriate unit of prosecution

39.2931 May charge separate count of conspiracy for each crime that is object of conspiracy

39.294 Charging, prosecuting, and punishing for multiple counts of conspiracy based on single conspiracy that has as its object commission of multiple crimes is not multiplicitous and does not violate double jeopardy clause

39.295 There is distinction between conspiracy as substantive inchoate crime and conspiracy as theory of liability for substantive consummated crime (see sec. 31.2372)

39.296 Does crime of "conspiracy to attempt" exist? In other words, is inchoate crime of conspiracy properly charged when object of conspiracy is alleged to be inchoate crime of attempt?

39.297 Use of federal decisions interpreting federal conspiracy statutes to interpret Wisconsin's conspiracy statutes
39.298 Charge of conspiracy will not lie when alleged victim of conspiracy is not innocent victim

39.31 Elements Of Solicitation
39.311 In general
39.312 "To commit" element
39.313 Circumstances that indicate unequivocally that defendant has intent that solicited felony be committed

39.32 Probable Cause To Believe Solicitation Occurred

39.33 Charging Solicitation

39.34 Admission Of Evidence

39.35 Instructing On Solicitation

39.36 Sufficiency Of Evidence To Establish Solicitation
39.361 Sufficiency to show factual basis needed to support guilty plea
39.362 Sufficiency to prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt 39.3621 Sufficiency to prove circumstances that indicate unequivocally that defendant has intent that solicited felony be committed

39.37 Other Matters
39.371 Renunciation or withdrawal is not defense to this crime
39.372 Constitutionality
39.373 Crime of solicitation committed if defendant advises another party to procure the defendant to directly commit the intended felony
39.374 Does penalty enhancer for habitual criminality apply to solicitation to commit escape? (see sec. 31.62967)
39.375 Meaning of "unequivocally" in solicitation and attempt statutes is the same

Chapter 40
Defenses

40.1 General Principles Relating To Defenses

40.11 What Constitutes Affirmative Or Negative Defense
40.111 In general
40.112 Affirmative defense

40.12 Burden Of Production And Proof
40.121 General principles
40.1211 In general
40.1212 With respect to general affirmative defenses recognized in ch. 939 of criminal code, state has burden to negate defense
40.12121 In general
40.12122 These defenses must be distinguished from affirmative defenses created in statutes defining particular offenses, with respect to which legislature expressly allocates burden of proof to defendant

40.122 Constitutionality of placing burden of production on defendant
40.1221 In general
40.1222 With respect to negative defense .............................................................. 40-2
40.123 Constitutionality of placing burden of proof on defendant ................................. 40-2
40.1231 In general (see sec. 30.3331) ................................................................. 40-2
40.1232 With respect to negative defense (see sec. 30.3332) ....................................... 40-2
40.1233 With respect to affirmative defense (see sec. 30.3333) ............................... 40-3
40.13 Negation Of Defense Not Element Of Offense ....................................................... 40-3
40.14 Admission Of Evidence ........................................................................................ 40-3
40.141 In general ........................................................................................................ 40-3
40.142 Court does not err in excluding evidence in support of defense when that defense does not exist or is inapplicable .......................................................... 40-3
40.15 Instructing On Defenses ...................................................................................... 40-3
40.151 When instruction on defense required .............................................................. 40-3
40.1512 In determining whether instruction on defense required, evidence must be viewed in light most favorable to defendant .......................................................... 40-3
40.1513 Defendant entitled to instruction on inconsistent defenses ............................. 40-3
40.152 Content of instruction ....................................................................................... 40-4
40.153 Appellate court will not review mid-trial advisory ruling on sufficiency of evidence to support particular defense (see sec. 8.573) ..................................................... 40-4
40.154 Defendant not entitled to mid-trial advisory ruling on sufficiency of evidence to support particular defense (see sec. 8.558) .............................................................. 40-4
40.155 Failure to give instruction on defense subject to harmless error rule ................. 40-4
40.156 When case submitted on stipulation of facts, appellate court does not apply general rule that trial court has discretion to determine what instructions the evidence reasonably requires ............................................................. 40-4
40.16 Other Matters .................................................................................................. 40-4
40.161 Defenses in non-criminal traffic prosecutions (see sec. 37.151) ......................... 40-4
40.162 Negation of defense not element of offense ..................................................... 40-4
40.163 Defendant not entitled to separate juries on inconsistent defenses (see sec. 26.492) .......................................................................................................................... 40-4
40.164 Defendant may raise inconsistent defenses ...................................................... 40-4
40.165 Objective reasonable person standard generally applicable to defenses .................. 40-4
40.166 Appellate court will not review mid-trial advisory ruling on sufficiency of evidence to support particular defense (see sec. 8.573) ..................................................... 40-4
40.167 Defendant not entitled to mid-trial advisory ruling on sufficiency of evidence to support particular defense (see sec. 8.558) .............................................................. 40-4
40.168 Do federal courts have authority to recognize common-law defense not provided by statute? .................................................................................................................. 40-4

40.2 Intoxicated Or Drugged Condition ........................................................................ 40-4
40.21 Voluntary Intoxication .......................................................................................... 40-5
40.211 Elements of this defense ............................................................................... 40-5
40.212 Burden of production and proof .................................................................... 40-5
40.213 Admission of evidence ................................................................................... 40-5
40.214 When evidence sufficient to require instruction on this defense ....................... 40-5
40.215 Instructing on this defense .......................................................................... 40-5
40.216 Sufficiency of evidence to establish or negate this defense ............................ 40-5
40.217 Other matters ............................................................................................... 40-6
40.22 Involuntary Intoxication

40.221 Elements of this defense

40.2211 In general

40.2212 Taking of prescription medication is deemed involuntary for purposes of this defense (see sec. 40.2274)

40.222 Burden of production and proof

40.223 Admission of evidence

40.224 When evidence sufficient to require instruction on this defense

40.225 Instructing on this defense

40.226 Sufficiency of evidence to establish or negate this defense

40.227 Other matters

40.2271 Closing argument on this defense

40.2272 Sending instruction on this defense to jury room

40.2273 Effect of intoxication on heat-of-passion defense

40.2274 Effects of prescription medication can form basis of involuntary intoxication defense

40.23 Temporary Psychosis Induced By Drug Or Alcohol Ingestion Not A Defense

40.3 Self-Defense And Defense Of Others

40.31 Elements Of This Defense

40.311 In general

40.312 Intentional threat or use of force required

40.3121 In general

40.3122 When the defendant has intentionally threatened force in self-defense, claim that use of force was accident does not defeat privilege

40.313 Use or threat of force required

41.39891 When defendant is serving consecutive indeterminate (i.e., pre-TIS) and determinate (i.e., TIS) sentences, sentences are treated as one continuous sentence, with confinement periods served first, followed by nonconfinement periods of parole and extended supervision, which are treated as one continuous period of supervision, so that, when defendant violates conditions of parole and extended supervision, both parole and extended supervision may be revoked .................................. 41-17

41.399 Other matters (cont'd) ............................................................................................................................ 41-17

41.3991 Use of mandamus to compel production of documents on which parole board relied in denying parole ...................... 41-18

41.3992 Person serving consecutive sentences is subject to parole revocation and reimprisonment for remainder of both sentences if he commits parole violation prior to discharge of first sentence ......................................................................................................................... 41-18

41.3993 Once department decides to revoke probation, sentencing court loses authority to intervene in process ................................................................................................................................................. 41-18

41.3994 Section 973.09(3)(b) notification of the sentencing court at least ninety days before probationer's term expires is not precondition to revoking probation for failure to pay restitution (see sec. 41.43622) ........................................................................................................ 41-18

41.3995 Requirement that revokee be competent (see sec. 41.31291) ................................................................. 41-18

41.3996 Propriety of having executive branch, rather than judiciary, decide whether probation should be revoked (see sec. 41.498) ......................................................................................................................................................... 41-18
41.3997 Propriety of revoking parole based on violation of rules of parole while defendant was still in custody ......................................... 41-18

41.39971 Generally, cannot revoke parole based on violation of rules of parole while defendant was still in custody (i.e., when defendant did not have conditional liberty of parolee when rule infraction occurred) .................................................. 41-18

41.39972 When defendant has been kept in continuous custody after reaching mandatory release date because he violated terms of parole immediately and simultaneously with his scheduled mandatory release date, defendant’s status changes from prisoner serving sentence to parolee detained on parole hold, and parole may be revoked .......................................................... 41-18

41.3998 Legislative delegation of probation revocation to executive branch does not violate separation of powers doctrine ...................... 41-18

Part B: Extended Supervision

41.6 Imposition Of Extended Supervision And Its Conditions .................................................................................. 41-29
41.61 Imposition Of Extended Supervision (see sec. 9.414) ...................................................................................... 41-29
41.62 Imposition Of Conditions Of Extended Supervision (see sec. 9.4151) ............................................................. 41-29

41.7 Revocation Of Extended Supervision ........................................................................................................... 41-29
41.71 The revocation process .................................................................................................................................... 41-29
41.711 Jurisdiction of department over person on extended supervision for purposes of revocation of extended supervision ............................................................................................................. 41-29
41.7111 In general .................................................................................................................................................... 41-29
41.7112 For purposes of Wis. Stat. § 304.073(3), which confers jurisdiction on department, "term of supervision" includes nonconfinement and confinement time arising from same sentencing decision ............................................................................................................. 41-29
41.712 Revocation of extended supervision when defendant serving consecutive sentences ........................................... 41-29
41.7121 When defendant serving consecutive indeterminate (i.e., pre-TIS) and determinate (i.e., TIS) sentences ............................................................................................................. 41-29
41.71211 When defendant is serving consecutive indeterminate (i.e., pre-TIS) and determinate (i.e., TIS) sentences, sentences are treated as one continuous sentence, with confinement periods served first, followed by nonconfinement periods of parole and extended supervision, which are treated as one continuous period of supervision, so that, when defendant violates conditions of parole and extended supervision, both parole and extended supervision may be revoked ............................................................................................................. 41-30
41.7122 When defendant serving two consecutive determinate (i.e., TIS) sentences ............................................................................................................. 41-30
41.71221 When defendant is serving two consecutive determinate (i.e., TIS) sentences, two consecutive periods of extended supervision are computed as one continuous period, so that, when defendant violates conditions of extended supervision, both periods of extended supervision may be revoked ............................................................................................................. 41-30
41.713 Propriety of considering certain violations ..................................................................................................... 41-30
41.7131 When sentence is imposed but stayed and defendant is placed on probation, and defendant's probation is revoked and he begins serving imposed bifurcated prison term, he may be revoked from that prison term's extended supervision component on basis of rules violation that occurred during initial term of probation ............................................. 41-30

41.741 Principles governing making of determination .......................................................... 41-31
41.7411 Principles in general .......................................................... 41-31
41.74111 In general ........................................................................ 41-31
41.74112 Reconfinement hearing is akin to sentencing hearing; court's duty at reconfinement hearing is same as it is at original sentencing .......................................................... 41-31
41.7412 Need for court to set forth explanation for its determination .......................................................... 41-31
41.74121 In general ........................................................................ 41-31
41.74122 In determining sufficiency of explanation, will reviewing court consider explanation given at original sentencing? (see sec. 41.7433) .......................................................... 41-32
41.7413 Consideration of original sentencing transcript .......................................................... 41-32
41.74131 In general ........................................................................ 41-32
41.74132 When judge who determines period of time for which defendant will be returned to prison is not same judge who imposed original sentence, does judge need to review original sentencing transcript and original presentence investigation report prior to determining period of reconfinement?

41.74133 Portions of original sentencing transcript that are considered by court should be mentioned by court

41.7414 Impact on determination of DOC's recommendation regarding period of reconfinement

41.74141 Creation of recommendation by DOC (see sec. 41.715)

41.74142 Court need not give deference to DOC's recommendation

41.74143 Court not required to accept DOC's recommendation

41.74144 When adoption of DOC's recommendation constitutes erroneous exercise of discretion

41.74145 Weight to give recommendation is fully within discretion of court

41.7415 Appropriate factors to consider in making determination

41.74151 In general

41.74152 It is within circuit court's discretion to decide what weight should be given to particular factor in particular case (see sec. 41.74193)

41.7416 Reconfinement time should be minimum amount that is necessary to protect public, prevent depreciation of seriousness of offense and to meet defendant's rehabilitative needs

41.7417 Sufficiency of explanation for determination

41.74171 In general

41.74172 In determining sufficiency of circuit court's explanation of determination of reconfinement time, will reviewing court consider explanation given at original sentencing? (see sec. 41.7433)

41.74173 It is within circuit court's discretion to decide what weight should be given to particular factor in particular case (see sec. 41.74193)

41.7418 Defendant's rights at hearing at which determination made

41.74181 Right to allocution

41.74182 Right to be sentenced on basis of accurate information

41.74183 Right to fair and impartial judge

41.7419 Other matters

41.74191 In making determination, must court set recommittment time so as to allow period of supervised transition between incarceration and return to community?
41.74192 Court should impose minimum amount of confinement which is consistent with protection of public, gravity of offense, and defendant's rehabilitative needs (see sec. 41.7416) .................................. 41-34
41.74193 It is within circuit court's discretion to decide what weight should be given to particular factor in particular case ........................................................................ 41-34
41.74194 When court at sentencing announces that it will impose maximum sentence if extended supervision is revoked, and indicates at sentencing hearing after revocation of extended supervision that it is acting in accord with that announcement and imposes maximum sentence, defendant's right to impartial judge is denied ................... 41-34
41.742 Determination of period of time is "sentencing" and reconfinement hearing is akin to sentencing hearing .................................................................................. 41-34
41.7422 Determination is "continuum of initial sentence"; it is extension of original sentencing proceeding ................................................................. 41-34
41.7423 Determination is not equivalent to imposition of new bifurcated sentence ............................................................................................ 41-34
41.7424 Determination is different species of sentencing than occurs at either probation or parole revocation sentencing hearing .................. 41-34

43.57 Federal Habeas Corpus (see sec. 10.6) ............................................................................... 43-13

43.58 Other Matters ........................................................................................................... 43-13

43.581 Filing of petition prerequisite to prosecution for statutory penalty for refusal to issue writ ........................................................................................................ 43-13

43.582 Equitable doctrine of laches applicable in habeas corpus proceedings (see sec. 43.542) ........................................................................................................ 43-13

43.583 No need to follow Anders (i.e., no-merit) procedure when appointed counsel concludes further proceedings attacking criminal conviction are unwarranted ................................................................. 43-13

43.585 Right to counsel in habeas corpus proceeding (see sec. 25.176) .............................. 43-13

43.586 Petition for habeas corpus filed in appellate court is appropriate vehicle for challenging ineffective assistance of appellate counsel (see sec. 25.26111) ......................................................................................... 43-13

43.587 Habeas corpus cannot be used as vehicle to create new constitutional rule unless rule would be applied retroactively to all defendants on collateral review ........................................................................................................ 43-13

43.5871 General rule ......................................................................................................... 43-13

43.5872 Exception: where habeas corpus is only vehicle by which new rule could be created ........................................................................................................ 43-13
43.588 Power of appellate courts when defendant challenges appellate counsel's failure to timely file petition for supreme court review of court of appeals' decision ................................................................. 43-13
43.5881 When defendant challenges appellate counsel's failure to timely file petition for supreme court review of court of appeals' decision, court of appeals has no power to grant any relief in habeas corpus proceeding (see sec. 43.5582) .............. 43-13
43.5882 When defendant challenges appellate counsel's failure to timely file petition for supreme court review of court of appeals' decision, supreme court may grant habeas corpus petition and allow late filing of petition for review (see sec. 43.5583) ..................................................................................................... 43-14
43.589 Other matters ....................................................................................................................................... 43-14
43.5891 When defendant deprived of petition for supreme court review of court of appeals' decision because of clerical error of court of appeals, supreme court may grant habeas corpus petition and permit late filing of petition for review (see sec. 43.5584) ..................................................................................................... 43-14

Implied Consent Law

44.1 Purpose, Construction, And Provisions In General ................................................................................. 44-1
44.11 Purpose Of Implied Consent Law ........................................................................................................... 44-1
44.12 Construction Of Implied Consent Law .................................................................................................. 44-1

TC-1119
44.121 In general ................................................................. 44-1
44.122 Substantial compliance with implied consent statute will suffice if it is actual compliance in respect to substance essential to objective of statute ......................................................... 44-2

44.13 Provisions Of Implied Consent Law In General ........................................ 44-2
44.131 In general ................................................................. 44-2
44.132 Consent of driver that is implied under implied consent law extends not only to taking of blood or other sample from body, but also to testing of that sample ........................................ 44-2

44.14 Other Matters ........................................................................ 44-2
44.141 Threatened sanction under implied consent law for failure to consent to blood alcohol test (i.e., loss of driving privilege) does not constitute coercive measure invalidating consent for Fourth Amendment purposes .......................................................... 44-2

44.2 Prerequisites To Administering Test ......................................................... 44-2
44.21 Requirement Of Citation ................................................................. 44-2
44.211 Before 1984, citation required ....................................................... 44-2
44.212 After 1984, citation not required .................................................. 44-2
44.22 Probable Cause To Believe Person Was Operating Vehicle Under Influence Of Intoxicant Or Other Drug ......................................................... 44-2
44.221 In general ................................................................. 44-2
44.222 Does not require proof that defendant was operating automobile, only probable cause to believe that was so .......................................................... 44-2
44.223 Comparison of concept of probable cause in this context with concept of probable cause in suppression context ......................................................... 44-3
44.224 May consider defendant's refusal to submit to field sobriety test in determining whether probable cause to arrest exists ......................................................... 44-3
44.225 Use of PBT to establish probable cause ......................................................... 44-3
44.2251 In general ................................................................. 44-3
44.2252 Results of PBT can be used to establish probable cause only if, before administering PBT, officer has probable cause to believe person was operating vehicle under influence of intoxicant ......................................................... 44-3
44.226 Propriety of considering defendant's refusal to submit to PBT in determining whether probable cause to arrest exists ......................................................... 44-3
44.227 Does not require that field sobriety test, which demonstrated person's impairment, was performed ......................................................... 44-3

44.23 Informing Driver Of Obligations, Penalties And Rights Under Implied Consent Law ......................................................... 44-3
44.231 General principles ................................................................. 44-3
44.2311 In general ................................................................. 44-3
44.2312 When officer fails to provide statutorily required information, this requirement is not met and operating privileges may not be revoked based on refusal to submit to chemical testing ......................................................... 44-4
44.2313 When officer provides statutorily required information, but then provides more information in excess of statutory duty, three-pronged Quelle inquiry is required to determine whether operating privileges may be revoked based on refusal to submit to chemical testing ....................................................... 44-4

44.23132 First prong: Has officer exceeded his statutory duty? ....................................................... 44-4

44.23133 Second prong: Was supply of excess information misleading (i.e., erroneous)? ....................................................... 44-4

44.23134 Third prong: Did misleading information affect driver's ability to make choice about chemical testing (see sec. 44.23521) ....................................................... 44-4

44.2314 Not required when driver is unconscious or otherwise not capable of withdrawing consent (see sec. 44.251) ....................................................... 44-4

44.232 Need to inform person driving personal vehicle, and not a commercial motor vehicle, of penalties applicable to persons driving or operating commercial motor vehicles ....................................................... 44-4

44.2322 When officer knows person is licensed as a commercial operator ................................................................................... 44-5

44.233 Informing driver that, if any test resulted in BAC of 0.10 percent or more, his license would be suspended ........................................................................ 44-5

44.2331 Propriety of this admonition in general ................................................................................... 44-5

44.2332 Consistency of this admonition with due process ................................................................................... 44-5

44.23321 In general ................................................................................... 44-5

44.23322 Does not violate due process on ground that there is a conflict between this advice and administrative code regulations on license suspension ........................................................................ 44-5

44.23323 Does not mislead accused or violate due process when accused refuses to take tests ........................................................................ 44-5

44.23324 May mislead accused and violate due process when accused takes test and fails it if no additional information about administrative suspension supplied ........................................................................ 44-5

44.2333 Effect of giving of this admonition on automatic admissibility of, and statutory presumptions relating to, blood test results ................................................................................... 44-5

44.234 Effect of overstating and understating penalties attending refusal to submit to test ................................................................................... 44-5

44.2341 Effect of overstating penalties attending refusal to submit to test, e.g., informing driver that refusal could result in incarceration ........................................................................ 44-6

44.2342 Effect of understating penalties attending refusal to submit to test, e.g., informing defendant that refusal could result in one-year revocation of driving privileges when in fact revocation period would be two years ........................................................................ 44-6
44.235 When this prerequisite to administering test is not met, must person refusing to submit to chemical testing show causal connection between failure to fulfill this prerequisite and refusal (i.e., that he would have submitted to testing had he been properly informed)? ................... 44-6

44.2351 When officer failed to provide statutorily required information ........................................................................................................... 44-6

44.2352 When officer provides statutorily required information, but then provides more information in excess of statutory duty and person contends that additional information was misleading (i.e., erroneous) ........................................................................ 44-6

44.23522 Person who refused to submit to chemical test has burden to make prima facie showing of causal connection between misleading statements and refusal; when prima facie showing made, burden shifts to state to prove otherwise; person who refused to submit to chemical test has ultimate burden of proving by preponderance of evidence that erroneous information caused him or her to refuse to take test ...................................................................... 44-6

44.236 Informing driver of right to alternative test ............................................................ 44-6

44.2362 Sufficiency and propriety of admonition when driver informed that, if any test resulted in BAC of 0.10 percent or more, his license would be suspended ........................................................................ 44-6

44.237 In conveying information to person who might not understand oral rendition of it (e.g., deaf person, non-English speaker), law enforcement officer must use those methods which, according to circumstances that existed at time of arrest, were reasonable and would reasonably convey information ........................................................................ 44-7

44.2372 No need to provide information to deaf person through certified sign language interpreter if other reasonable means are employed to convey information ........................................................................ 44-7

44.2381 Propriety of delivering commercial motor vehicle warnings to suspect who holds only regular operator's license .......................................................... 44-7

44.2382 In determining whether information sufficiently conveyed, whether accused driver has actually comprehended warnings is not part of the inquiry; rather, focus is on conduct of officer ........................................................................................................ 44-7

44.2383 Accused driver need not comprehend implied consent warnings for warnings to have been reasonably conveyed ........................................................................ 44-7

44.2384 Sufficiency of Informing the Accused form developed by Department of Transportation in general ........................................................................ 44-7

44.2385 Statutorily prescribed "Informing the Accused" form does not either overstate consequences of refusal or understate what may occur if test shows prohibited blood alcohol concentration and, therefore, does not deny accused's right to due process ........................................................................ 44-7
Burden and standard of proof on question whether required information properly conveyed ........................................ 44-7

Effect of officer’s misinforming driver that officer has right to require driver to perform field sobriety tests .................. 44-8

Threatened sanction under implied consent law for failure to consent to blood alcohol test (i.e., loss of driving privilege) does not constitute coercive measure invalidating consent for Fourth Amendment purposes (see sec. 44.141) .................. 44-8

Effect of administration of Miranda warnings in conjunction with, or immediately before, reading the Informing the Accused form (see sec. 44.347) .................................................................. 44-8

Other matters (cont’d) .......................................................................................................................................... 44-8

Particular types of misinformation conveyed to driver regarding obligations, penalties, and rights under implied consent law .................................................................................................. 44-8

Misinforming defendant that certain penalties will be imposed if he has two or more prior suspensions, revocations or convictions within five-year period, when actual period is ten years ................ 44-8

Misinforming driver that, if he refuses to submit to testing, he will be entitled to hearing within ten days (driver is entitled to request hearing within ten days, not to have hearing within ten days) .......... 44-8

Remedy for violation of requirement (see secs. 13.36213, 44.5422, and 44.5452) ......................................................... 44-8

To establish prejudicial misinformation, must defendant establish that he would have submitted to testing had he been properly informed? (see sec. 44.235) ................................................ 44-8

"Subjective confusion" as to obligations, penalties and rights is no defense to refusal to take test and does not provide basis for suppressing results of test ......................................................... 44-8

Confusion as to right to consult with counsel before blood-alcohol test administered (see sec. 44.3243) .................. 44-8

Sufficiency of information regarding Wisconsin procedures and penalties when driver holds out-of-state license .......... 44-9

Defendant has no right to attorney before undergoing tests, but officer not required to inform defendant that he lacks such right (see secs. 44.26 and 44.281) .................................................................................................. 44-9

When officer has exceeded duty with respect to informing driver of required information, and the extra information provided is erroneous, defendant has burden to prove by preponderance of evidence that erroneous information caused him or her to refuse to take test (see sec. 44.23522) .......................... 44-9

Best practice is for law enforcement officer to give all warnings to all OWI suspects .................................................. 44-9

Providing alternative test or opportunity for additional test ................................................................. 44-9

Providing alternative test at agency expense ................................................................................................. 44-9

When alternative test required ....................................................................................................................... 44-9
44.2411  In general ................................................................................... 44-9

44.2412  Alternative test not required when defendant not placed under arrest before agreeing to test to which officer asked him to submit .............................................. 44-9

44.2413  When defendant entitled to alternative test at state expense ................................................................. 44-9

44.2414  Request for alternative test may be made before primary test administered (i.e., request for alternative test not invalid simply because it was made before primary test was administered) ................. 44-9

44.2412  Determining whether defendant requested alternative test .................. 44-10

44.2412  In general ................................................................. 44-10

44.2412  Request for alternative test may be made before primary test administered (i.e., request for alternative test not invalid simply because it was made before primary test was administered) (see sec. 44.24114) ........................................................................... 44-10

44.2413  When defendant requests alternative test instead of or rather than primary test, no valid request for alternative test has been made ................................................................. 44-10

44.2414  Where police have informed suspect of right to alternative test at agency expense, suspect has ample opportunity to make request, suspect makes no request, and suspect is released from custody and leaves presence of custodial police, subsequent request for alternative test at agency expense is not valid request .................................................. 44-10

44.2413  Remedy for failure to provide alternative test (see secs. 44.5424 and 44.5441) ................................................................. 44-10

44.2414  Admission of evidence that requirement not met (see sec. 13.3628) ....................................................................................................... 44-10

44.2415  Other and related matters ................................................................. 44-10

44.2415  Right to alternative test does not give driver right to designate test to be administered by officer ............................................. 44-10

44.2414  Providing opportunity for additional test at person's expense .................. 44-10

44.2421  Agency required only to provide "reasonable opportunity" for additional test, not to comply with a reasonable request for an additional test ................................................................................ 44-10

44.2422  Remedy for failure to provide reasonable opportunity for additional test (see sec. 44.5425) ....................................................................................................... 44-10

44.243  Other matters .......................................................................................................... ... 44-10

44.2431  Purpose of providing alternative test or opportunity for additional test ................................................................................ 44-10

44.25  When Driver Is Unconscious Or Otherwise Not Capable Of Withdrawing Consent ...................................................................................................................... 44-10

44.252  No need to advise driver of obligations, penalties and rights under implied consent law ................. 44-11

44.253  No need to obtain consent ................................................................................ 44-11
44.254 Person may be "otherwise not capable of withdrawing consent" due to mental disorder .......................................................... 44-11
44.26 Driver Has No Right To Attorney ................................................................. 44-11
44.27 No Need To Advise Of Potential Revocation For Drunk Driving ......................... 44-11
44.28 Other Prerequisites And Matters Of Which Defendant Need And Need Not Be Informed .................................................................................................................. 44-11
   44.281 Officer not required to advise driver in custody that right to counsel does not apply to administration of chemical test under implied consent law .................................................................. 44-11
   44.282 Implied consent statute only requires arresting officers to inform defendants orally about law; it does not mandate written completion of form or obligate officers to fill out form in any particular manner .......... 44-11
44.29 Effect Of Failure To Follow Prescribed Statutory Procedures ........................................ 44-11
   44.291 Failure to inform driver of obligations, penalties and rights under implied consent law (see secs. 13.36213, 44.5422, 44.5452, and 44.5461) ........... 44-11
   44.292 Failure to provide alternative test (see secs. 44.5424 and 44.5441) ..................... 44-11
   44.293 Failure to honor defendant's refusal to consent to test (see sec. 44.5426) .......................................................... 44-11

44.3 Requirement That Driver Take Test ............................................................................................... 44-11
44.31 Requirement That Driver Take Designated Test ................................................................. 44-11
   44.312 Officer's right to request different test than that originally designated ............ 44-12
   44.313 Officer's right to request additional test after defendant submits to originally requested test .......................................................................................................................... 44-12
   44.314 Driver has no right to refuse test based on fact that hospital or medical personnel performing test require driver to sign consent form consistent with provisions of implied consent law .............................................. 44-12
   44.315 Threatened sanction under implied consent law for failure to consent to blood alcohol test (i.e., loss of driving privilege) does not constitute coercive measure invalidating consent for Fourth Amendment purposes (see sec. 44.141) .......................................................... 44-12
44.32 What Constitutes Refusal To Take Test ......................................................................................... 44-12
   44.321 In general .............................................................................................................. ...... 44-12
   44.322 Verbal refusal not required; conduct of accused may serve as basis for finding refusal ........................................................................................................... 44-12
   44.323 Failure to cooperate in administration of test constitutes refusal to take test .............................................................................................................................. 44-12
   44.324 Conditioning submission to chemical test upon ability to confer with attorney constitutes refusal ............................................................................................................. 44-12
   44.3241 General rule ............................................................................................... 44-12
   44.3242 Exception to general rule when officer explicitly assures or implicitly suggests that driver has right to consult with counsel ..................................................................................................... 44-12
   44.3243 Exception to general rule does not exist when driver is subjectively confused about whether he has right to consult with counsel ..................................................................................................... 44-12
   44.325 Responding to request to submit to test with repeated requests for attorney can amount to refusal if officer informs driver that he has no right to attorney at that point ............................................................................................................. 44-13
44.326 Failure to cooperate in administration of test constitutes refusal to take test ................................................................. 44-13

44.33 Driver's Right To Alternative Test Or Reasonable Opportunity For Additional Test ................................................................. 44-13
  44.331 Driver's right to alternative test at agency expense ................................................................. 44-13
    44.3311 When alternative test required (see sec. 44.2411) ................................................................. 44-13
    44.3312 Remedy for failure to provide alternative test (see secs. 44.5424 and 44.5441) ................................................................. 44-13
    44.3313 Admission of evidence that right was denied ................................................................. 44-13
    44.3314 Other matters ......................................................................................................................... 44-13
      44.33141 Right to alternative test does not give driver right to designate test to be administered by officer (see sec. 44.2415) ................................................................. 44-13
  44.332 Driver's right to reasonable opportunity for additional test at person's expense ................................................................. 44-13
    44.3321 Agency required only to provide "reasonable opportunity" for additional test, not to comply with a reasonable request for an additional test (see sec. 44.2421) ................................................................. 44-13
    44.3322 Remedy for failure to provide reasonable opportunity for additional test (see sec. 44.5425) ................................................................. 44-13

44.34 Reasonableness Of Refusal To Take Test ......................................................................................................................... 44-13
  44.342 Where refusal due to mental disorder ................................................................................................. 44-13
  44.343 Where refusal follows allegedly improper police activity (e.g., improperly returning defendant to accident scene from home without probable cause to arrest) ............................................................................................................................................. 44-13
  44.344 Driver has no right to refuse test based on fact that hospital or medical personnel performing test require driver to sign consent form consistent with provisions of implied consent law (see sec. 44.314) ................................................................. 44-14
  44.345 Refusal is reasonable if officer explicitly assures or implicitly suggests that driver has right to consult with counsel but denies driver's request for such consultation (see sec. 44.3242) ................................................................. 44-14
  44.346 Subjective confusion regarding obligations, penalties and rights under implied consent law does not make refusal reasonable ............................................................................................................................................. 44-14
    44.3461 In general (see sec. 44.2394) ................................................................................................. 44-14
    44.3462 Confusion as to right to consult with counsel before blood-alcohol test administered (see sec. 44.3243) ................................................................. 44-14
  44.347 Where refusal follows administration of Miranda warning ............................................................................................................................................. 44-14

44.35 Other Matters ............................................................................................................................................. 44-14
  44.351 Willingness to submit to test, following earlier refusal, does not cure refusal ............................................................................................................................................. 44-14
  44.352 Notice of intent to revoke when defendant refuses test (see sec. 44.411) ............................................................................................................................................. 44-14

44.4 Revocation And Suspension Proceedings ............................................................................................................................................. 44-14
  44.41 Revocation Of Operating Privilege For Refusal To Take Test ............................................................................................................................................. 44-14
    44.411 Notice of intent to revoke ............................................................................................................................................. 44-14
      44.4111 Requirement that notice be served immediately following refusal ............................................................................................................................................. 44-14
      44.41111 In general ............................................................................................................................................. 44-14
Failure to serve notice immediately following refusal does not render proceeding jurisdictionally defective or violate due process 44-14

Requirement that notice contain "substantially all" information prescribed in Wis. Stat. § 343.305(9)(a) 44-14

Information related to issues that may be raised at refusal (i.e., revocation) hearing 44-14

Effect of defects in notice of intent to revoke 44-14

In general 44-14

Defect must be fundamental to deprive court of jurisdiction 44-15

Technical defect will warrant relief only if it was prejudicial 44-15

Due process requirements relating to revocation 44-15

Due process requires notice of intent to revoke, but does not require that notice be served immediately following refusal 44-15

Need for pre-revocation hearing 44-15

No right to counsel at revocation (i.e. refusal) hearing 44-15

Due process procedures 44-15

Notice of intent to revoke (see sec. 44.411) 44-15

District attorney to prosecute 44-15

Not rendered defective by failure to submit copies of notice to concerned agencies 44-15

Requirement that court make required determination within five days of revocation (i.e. refusal) hearing not jurisdictional 44-15

No need for presuspension hearing 44-15

Administrative suspension notice 44-15

Contents of notice 44-15

Civil procedures that do and do not apply in revocation (i.e. refusal) proceedings 44-15

Discovery procedures provided by Wis. Stat. ch. 804 apply to revocation (i.e. refusal) proceedings 44-16

Summary judgment not appropriate in revocation (i.e. refusal) proceeding 44-16

Is request for admissions permissible in revocation (i.e. refusal) proceeding? 44-16

Appointment of special prosecutor (see sec. 6.6712) 44-16

Effect of procedural defects 44-16

Defect must be fundamental to deprive court of jurisdiction 44-16

Technical defect will warrant relief only if it was prejudicial 44-16
44.41393 Particular defect: Improper denial of hearing because, e.g., trial court erroneously concludes that request for hearing was not timely made, that results in revocation of operating privilege before hearing held (see sec. 44.4173) .............................................. 44-16

44.414 Procedure (cont'd) ................................................................. 44-16

44.4141 Defendant has no right to counsel at revocation (i.e. refusal) hearing (see sec. 44.4124) ........................................................... 44-16

44.415 Issues at revocation (i.e. refusal) hearing; what must be proved ................. 44-16

44.4152 Requirement that requesting officer have probable cause to believe person was operating vehicle under influence of intoxicant ...................................................................................... 44-16

44.4153 Requirement that officer have complied with informational provisions of implied consent law .............................................. 44-17

44.41532 When officer fails to provide statutorily required information, this requirement is not met and operating privileges may not be revoked based on refusal to submit to chemical testing (see sec.
44.2312) ...................................................................................... 44-17

44.41533 When officer provides statutorily required information, but then provides more information in excess of statutory duty, three-pronged Quelle inquiry is required to determine whether operating privilege may be revoked based on refusal to submit to chemical testing (see sec.
44.2313) ...................................................................................... 44-17

44.4154 To establish prejudicial misinformation, defendant not required to establish that he would have submitted to testing had he been properly informed (see sec. 44.2393) ............. 44-17

44.4155 No need to prove defendant was driving automobile ................. 44-17

44.416 Standard and burden of proof at revocation (i.e. refusal) hearing ................ 44-17

44.4161 Standard of proof for finding of probable cause .............................. 44-17

44.41611 In general ........................................................................... 44-17

44.41612 Comparison of standard of proof in this context and standard of proof in suppression context (see sec. 44.223) ............................................................................. 44-17

44.4165 Burden and standard of proof on question whether required information properly conveyed (see sec. 44.2386) .......................... 44-18

44.417 Appellate review of order revoking operating privilege for failure to submit to blood-alcohol testing ...................................................... 44-18

44.4171 Standard of review ..................................................................... 44-18
44.4172  Of question whether probable cause existed ........................................... 44-18
44.4173  Of question whether officer has given additional and incorrect information to person ........................................................ .................. 44-18
44.4172  Revocation (i.e. refusal) hearing is not "traffic regulation case"; therefore, order of revocation must be reduced to writing and filed before appellate court has jurisdiction ............................................. 44-18
44.418  Other matters ........................................................................................................ 44-18
44.4181  Propriety of revocation if blood, breath, or urine sample taken despite defendant's refusal ........................................................ 44-18
44.4182  Revocation (i.e. refusal) proceeding is a "special proceeding" ............. 44-18
44.4183  Effect of improper denial of hearing because, e.g., trial court erroneously concludes that request for hearing was not timely made, that results in revocation of operating privilege before hearing held on whether operating privilege should be revoked ........................................................................ 44-18
44.4184  Threatened sanction under implied consent law for failure to consent to blood alcohol test (i.e., loss of driving privilege) does not constitute coercive measure invalidating consent for Fourth Amendment purposes (see sec. 44.141) ........................................................................................................... 44-18
44.4185  Defendant has no right to counsel at revocation (i.e. refusal) hearing (see sec. 44.4124) ........................................................ 44-18
44.4186  Revocation (i.e. refusal) proceeding is civil, not criminal, in nature ....................................................................................................................... 44-18
44.42  Suspension Of Operating Privilege When Test Result Indicates Alcohol Concentration Of 0.10 Or More ................................................................. 44-18
44.421  Initial suspension effected by law enforcement officer ........................................ 44-18

44.51  Requirement That Driver Be Afforded Alternative Test Or Reasonable Opportunity For Additional Test ........................................................................ 44-19
44.511  Requirement that driver be afforded alternative test (see sec. 44.241) ................ 44-19
44.512  Requirement that driver be afforded a reasonable opportunity for additional test (see sec. 44.242) ................................................................. 44-19
44.52  Need To Retain Breathalyzer Ampoule Or Blood Or Urine Sample (see sec. 18.42) ....................................................................................................................... 44-19
44.53  Admission Of Blood Alcohol Test Results In Criminal Proceeding (see sec. 18.4) ....................................................................................................................... 44-19
44.54  Remedies For Failure To Follow Statutory Procedures ........................................ 44-19
44.542  Suppression in criminal prosecution of results of test for blood-alcohol concentration ............................................................................................................... 44-19
44.5421  Generally not required for noncompliance with procedures set forth in implied consent law ............................................................................................................... 44-19
44.5422 Not required for failure to inform driver of obligations, penalties and rights under implied consent law .................................. 44-19
44.5423 Not required for failure to comply with implied consent law when test administered in another state ......................................... 44-20
44.5424 May be ordered, but not required to be ordered, for failure to provide alternative test .......................................................... 44-20
44.5425 May be ordered for failure to provide reasonable opportunity for additional test .......................................................... 44-20
44.5426 Not required for refusal to honor defendant's refusal to consent to test ............................................................................. 44-20
44.5427 Not required for refusal to honor request for breath test made by defendant who has not submitted to a test under implied consent law ............................................................................. 44-20
44.5428 Not required for violations of other statutes (e.g., Americans With Disabilities Act) ................................................................. 44-20
44.5429 Since implied consent law does not provide sole means of collecting blood or other sample, police may use other constitutional means to collect admissible evidence of intoxication (see sec. 44.593) ................................................................. 44-20
44.543 Suppression in criminal prosecution of evidence of defendant's refusal to take test ..................................................................................................... 44-20
44.5431 In general ................................................................................................... 44-20
44.5432 Required for failure to inform driver of obligations, penalties, and rights under implied-consent law (see sec. 13.36213) .................................................................................................................. 44-20
44.544 Dismissal of criminal prosecution ................................................................................................................................. 44-21
44.5441 Not required for failure to provide alternative test ............................................................................................................. 44-21

44.5452 Required for failure to inform driver of obligations, penalties, and rights under implied-consent law ................................. 44-21
44.546 Setting aside of administrative suspension of driving privilege ................................................................................................................. 44-21
44.5461 Required for failure to inform driver of obligations, penalties and rights under implied consent law ................................................... 44-21
44.547 Loss of automatic admissibility of, or statutory presumptions relating to, blood test results ................................................................................................................. 44-21
44.5471 In general ................................................................................................... 44-21
44.5472 Not required for informing defendant that, if "any" test resulted in BAC of 0.10 percent or more, his license would be suspended .................................................................................. 44-21
44.5473 Required for failure to inform driver of obligations, penalties and rights under implied consent law ................................................... 44-21
44.55 Admissibility at trial of defendant's refusal to submit to test to determine inebriation (see secs. 13.3621, 22.4561, and 24.442) .................................................................................................................. 44-21

Chapter 45
Statutory Construction

45.1  General Principles Of Construction .......................................................... 45-1
45.11  Objectives Of Statutory Construction ....................................................... 45-1
45.111  To discern and effectuate legislative intent and statute's purpose .......... 45-1
45.1112  Court assumes that legislature's intent is expressed in statutory language ......................................................................................... 45-9 45.1113  Court's rejection of words, or reading of words into statute, in order to effectuate legislative intent ......................................................... 45-9
45.11132  Court should not add words to a statute to give it a certain meaning (see sec. 45.19997) ......................................................... 45-10 45.1114  Does not require simplistic assumption that whatever furthers statute's primary objective must be the law ........................................ 45-10 45.1115  Literal construction will not be adopted if it defeats legislative purpose ......................................................................................... 45-10 45.1116  Court's right to disregard grammatical errors or mistakes in statute in order to effectuate legislative intent ............................................... 45-10 45.1117  Interpretation supporting statute's purpose is favored over one that will defeat objective of statute ......................................................... 45-10 45.1118  Court presumes that legislature intends for statute to be interpreted in manner that advances purposes of statute ......................... 45-10
45.1119  Other principles .................................................................................. 45-10
45.11191  Legislative intent must be ascertained from language of statute in relation to its context, history, scope, and objective, including consequences of alternative interpretations ............................................. 45-10 45.11192  But legislative intent is not primary focus of statutory construction; it is enacted law, not unenacted intent, that is binding on public ................................................. 45-10 45.11193  All parts of statute should be construed to support statute's overall purpose ............................................................................... 45-10
45.11194  Statutory interpretation that contravenes statute's purpose is not favored ................................................................................. 45-10
45.11195 Canons of statutory construction are not mandatory rules, but guides designed to determine legislative intent; other circumstances evincing legislative intent can overcome their force (see sec. 45.19999) .......................................................... 45-11

45.11196 Court not required to give words their literal or usual meaning when acceptance of that meaning would thwart purpose or intent of statute .................................................. 45-11

45.112 To determine, and give effect to, plain meaning of words in statute .................................................. 45-11

45.1121 In general ........................................................................................................................................ 45-11

45.1122 Meaning of language of statute to be determined in light of statute's manifest scope, context, and purpose insofar as they are ascertainable from text and structure of statute itself .................................................. 45-11

45.1123 To discern plain meaning of statute, court may consider prior case law interpreting, or otherwise related to, statute .................................................. 45-11

45.11231 In general .................................................................................................................................. 45-12

45.11232 Court of appeals may consider prior supreme court decisions stating purpose of statute .................................................. 45-12

45.1124 To discern plain meaning of statute, court may consider history of statute .................................................. 45-12

45.12 Primary Source Of Construction Is Language Of Statute; Statutory Construction Begins With Language Of Statute .......................................................... 45-12

45.122 Showing of contrary intention in legislative history may justify departure from plain meaning of statutory language .................................................. 45-22

45.123 When faced with plain language, court applies plain language unless such application would lead to absurd or unreasonable result; plain meaning of language of statute may be rejected if it would lead to absurd or unreasonable result .................................................. 45-22

45.124 Plain meaning of language of statute may be rejected if it is clearly at odds with legislative intent .................................................. 45-22

45.125 Plain meaning of statute takes precedence over all extrinsic sources and rules of construction .................................................. 45-23

45.126 Court will not read words into statute if statute has clear meaning on its face .................................................. 45-23

45.127 Scope, context, and purpose of statute are perfectly relevant to plain-meaning interpretation of unambiguous statute as long as the scope, context, and purpose are ascertainable from text and structure of statute itself, rather than from extrinsic sources, such as legislative history (see sec. 45.3194) .................................................. 45-23

45.128 Court not at liberty to disregard plain, clear words of statute .................................................. 45-23

45.129 Other matters .................................................. 45-23

45.1291 If meaning of language is plain, inquiry ordinarily stops .................................................. 45-23

45.13 Propriety Of Resort To Rules Of Statutory Construction: Statute Must Be Ambiguous; When Statutory Language Is Plain, It Is Interpreted According To Its Terms .................................................. 45-23

45.131 General rule .................................................. 45-23

45.1311 In general .................................................. 45-23

45.1312 Dissent questioning validity of general rule .................................................. 45-32
45.132 When statute is ambiguous: statutory language is ambiguous when it can be understood in two or more senses by reasonably well-informed persons ................................................................. 45-32

45.133 Disagreement on meaning of statute between parties or judges or between party and judge does not necessarily render statute ambiguous .................................................. 45-33

45.134 Ambiguity can be created by statute's interaction with, or relation to, another statutory provision ................................................................................................................. 45-33

45.135 Impact of legislative history of statute on question of ambiguity .................. 45-34

45.1351 Legislative history of statute cannot be used to create ambiguity .................. 45-34

45.1352 Legislative history of statute can be invoked to demonstrate that statute is not ambiguous and that court has properly interpreted it ................................................................. 45-34

45.1353 Legislative history may be examined to determine plain meaning of statute (see sec. 45.1124) ................................................................. 45-34

45.136 Impact of split of judicial authority regarding statute's meaning on question of ambiguity ................................................................. 45-34

45.1361 Split in other jurisdictions on meaning of similar statute evidences statute's ambiguity ................................................................................................................. 45-34

45.1362 Division of judicial authority over the proper construction of a statute does not necessarily render it ambiguous ................................................................. 45-34

45.1363 When courts or judges disagree about interpretation of law, law is, by definition, ambiguous ................................................................. 45-34

45.137 Other matters relating to ambiguity ...................................................................... 45-34

45.1371 Title of statute cannot be used to create ambiguity ................................................................. 45-34

45.1373 Effect of statutory definition of word or phrase ................................................................. 45-34

45.1374 Depending on facts of case, same statute may be found ambiguous in one setting and unambiguous in another (see sec. 45.3198) ................................................................. 45-35

45.138 Other matters relating to ambiguity (cont’d) ................................................................. 45-35

45.1381 Provision that statute is to be liberally construed to effectuate remedial purpose can only serve as aid for resolving ambiguity not as basis for creating ambiguity ................................................................. 45-35

45.1382 Statute unambiguous on its face may be ambiguous when applied to particular set of facts ................................................................................................................. 45-35

45.1383 Statute plain on its face may be rendered ambiguous by context in which it is sought to be applied ................................................................................................................. 45-35

45.1384 Statute may be plain and unambiguous when applied to one set of facts but yield an ambiguity when applied to another ................................................................. 45-35

45.1385 Before it will find statute ambiguous, court will first examine statutory definitions of words and phrases ................................................................................................................. 45-35

45.1386 Extrinsic sources may be considered to assure that court's interpretation gives effect to intent of legislature ................................................................................................................. 45-35

45.1387 Clear and unambiguous statute may be construed if literal application would lead to absurd or unreasonable result ................................................................. 45-35

45.1388 Ambiguity may be created by statute's placement in statute book ................................................................................................................. 45-35
45.1389 Ambiguity not required before court may examine scope, context, or purpose of statute as long as scope, context, and purpose are ascertainable from text and structure of statute itself, rather than extrinsic sources, such as legislative history (see sec. 45.3194) ........................................................................ 45-35
45.139 Other matters relating to ambiguity (cont’d) ........................................................ 45-35
45.1391 Statute not rendered ambiguous simply because its provisions are difficult to apply to facts of particular case .......... 45-35
45.1392 Use of word "any" may render statute unambiguous and susceptible to only one interpretation ................................................................. 45-36
45.1393 Ambiguity may be created by absence of explicit sanction of, or prohibition on, particular action that party argues is prohibited by statute ........................................................................ 45-36
45.1394 Word is not ambiguous merely because it is general enough to encompass more than one set of circumstances .......... 45-36
45.1395 Need to resort to dictionary to ascertain meaning of word does not render word ambiguous ................................................................. 45-36
45.1396 Fact that same conduct may be violation of two statutes does not mean that those statutes are ambiguous ................................................................. 45-36
45.1397 Statute need not be ambiguous before court may resort to dictionary for definition of its terms (see sec. 45.2122) ...................... 45-36
45.1398 Ambiguity not created by failure to address every interpretative theory ........................................................................................................ 45-36
45.1399 Fact that statute can be applied in situations not expressly anticipated by legislature does not demonstrate ambiguity; it demonstrates breadth ........................................................................................................ 45-36
45.14 Determining Which Controls When Statutes Conflict ................................................. 45-36
45.141 Specific provision is controlling over general one ........................................................ 45-36
45.1412 Prosecutor may charge more general statute proscribing defendant's criminal conduct even though more specific statute exists ................................................................. 45-36
45.1413 Rule only applies where legislative intent cannot be discerned from pertinent provisions and provisions are in irreconcilable conflict ........................................................................................................ 45-38
45.1414 Exception: when application of rule creates absurd result ...................................... 45-38
45.1415 Rule applies only when general statute is ambiguous ............................................. 45-38
45.1416 Rule does not apply if it appears that legislature intended general statute to prevail ........................................................................................................ 45-38
45.142 Later provision is controlling over earlier one ............................................................ 45-38
45.15 When Strict Construction Required .............................................................................. 45-38
45.151 Penal statute (rule of lenity) ....................................................................................... 45-38
45.1511 In general ............................................................................................................. 45-38
45.1512 Rule is limited to penal statutes ................................................................................ 45-42
45.1513 Rule only applies when statute is ambiguous; rule does not apply if statute is unambiguous ........................................................................................................ 45-42
45.1514 Rule applies to ambiguous statute only if court cannot clarify intent of legislature by resort to legislative history or other extrinsic sources of interpretation, or to traditional canons of statutory construction ........................................................................................................ 45-42

45.1515 Application of rule of lenity in determining whether multiple prosecutions under particular statutory provision are permitted .............................................. 45-42
45.1516 Rule of strict construction of penal statute does not mean that only narrowest possible construction must be adopted in disregard of statute's purpose ......................................... 45-42
45.1517 Rule of lenity has no application outside realm of statutory construction .......................................................... 45-43
45.1518 Other matters ............................................................................................................................... 45-43
   45.15181 Rule of lenity does not require giving statute narrowest possible construction if doing so would run contrary to legislature's intent ...................................... 45-43
   45.15182 Rule of lenity should not be applied when it would defeat true meaning and intent of statute .......... 45-43
   45.15183 Rule of lenity applies only when there is grievous ambiguity or uncertainty in statute ..................... 45-43
   45.15184 Rule of strict construction of penal statute cannot be used to circumvent purpose of statute .......... 45-43
45.152 Statute in derogation of common law ................................................................. 45-43
45.153 Statute creating privilege (see sec. 17.94) ............................................................... 45-43

   45.16121 Interstate agreement on detainers (see sec. 6.24955) .......................................................... 45-43
45.162 When statute provides that it is to be liberally construed (see sec. 45.1983) ................................................................. 45-43
45.17 What Construction Should Avoid ................................................................................. 45-43
   45.171 Unreasonable or absurd results .................................................................................... 45-43
   45.1711 In general ..................................................................................................................... 45-43
   45.1712 Court's reading of words into statute in order to avoid absurd result ................................................................. 45-48
   45.1713 Fact that plain language of statute creates unreasonable or absurd result does not give court right to change that language by judicial fiat; unreasonable or absurd results created by plain language of statute present problem for legislature to address ........................................................................ 45-48
   45.1714 Fact that interpretation not supported by statutory language is more reasonable than interpretation supported by statutory language does not necessarily make latter interpretation unreasonable or absurd ........................................................................ 45-48
   45.1715 When faced with plain language, court applies plain language unless such application would lead to absurd or unreasonable results (see sec. 45.123) ......................................................... 45-48
45.172 Conflict with other statutes .................................................................................... 45-49
   45.1721 In general ..................................................................................................................... 45-49
45.1722 Where no conflict exists, court will not look beyond plain words of statute in construing it ............................................................. 45-49

45.173 Rendering any part of statute superfluous, inoperative, or meaningless; court's duty to give effect, where possible, to every sentence, clause and word of statute ............................................................. 45-49

45.1731 In general ................................................................................................... 45-49

45.1732 Interpretation of statute that renders element of crime easy to prove does not render that element superfluous .................. 45-51

45.174 Creation of anomaly ........................................................................................................ 45-51

45.175 Rendering statute unconstitutional (see secs. 47.45, 47.46, and 47.47) ................................. 45-51

45.1792 Leaving gaps in statute (see sec. 45.19987) ................................................................................................. 45-52

45.18 What Should Be Considered In Construing Statute .................................................................................. 45-52

45.181 Entire statute or section; statute is to be read as a whole .................................................................................. 45-52

45.182 Surrounding and closely-related sections or statutes ........................................................................................................ 45-54

45.183 Other statutes dealing with same or similar subject ........................................................................................................ 45-55

45.184 Position of statutory subsection .................................................................................. 45-56

45.185 Different language in different statutes ........................................................................................................ 45-56

45.186 Language included in one section of statute but omitted in another ........................................................................................................ 45-56

45.187 Language deleted from earlier version of bill ........................................................................................................ 45-56

45.188 Title of statute (see sec. 45.43) ................................................................................................. 45-56

45.189 Other matters ........................................................................................................... 45-56

45.1891 Prior statutes on same subject (see sec. 45.1961) .................................................................................. 45-56

45.1893 Limiting phrase ................................................................................................... 45-56

45.1894 Statute to which reference is made in statute being construed .......................................................... 45-56

45.1896 Context and structure of statute ................................................................................................. 45-56

45.1897 Overall intent of statutory scheme ................................................................................................. 45-56

45.19 Other Principles Of Construction .................................................................................. 45-56

45.191 Statute should be interpreted with common sense; statute should be given its common sense meaning ........................................................................................................ 45-57

45.192 Construction should produce harmony ................................................................................................. 45-57

45.1922 Statutes dealing with same subject matter should be construed together and harmonized ........................................................................................................ 45-57

45.1923 Statutes on same subject matter should be construed in manner that harmonizes them and gives each full force and effect ........................................................................................................ 45-59

45.1924 Each part of statute should be construed in connection with every other part to produce harmonious whole ........................................................................................................ 45-59

45.1925 Apparently conflicting provisions of law should be construed so as to harmonize them ........................................................................................................ 45-59
45.1926 Interrelated statutes should be construed to produce a harmonious whole .............................................................. 45-59
45.1927 When statutes conflict, court is to harmonize them in a manner that serves each statute's purpose .......................... 45-59
45.1928 Conflicts between statutes are not favored and will not be held to exist if statute may be reasonably interpreted otherwise ................................................................. 45-59
45.1929 Construction should reconcile legislature's goals in statutes under review ............................................................ 45-59

45.193 Statutory construction and the constitution ................................................................................................................. 45-60
45.1931 Construction so as to render statute constitutional (see sec. 47.46) .............................................................................. 45-60
45.1932 Construction so as to avoid constitutional issue (see sec. 47.45) .............................................................................. 45-60
45.1933 Supplying constitutional deficiencies to save statute (see sec. 47.47) .............................................................................. 45-60

45.194 Presumptions utilized in construing statutes .................................................................................................................... 45-60
45.1941 Presumption that legislature, in enacting statutes, is aware of existing law ................................................................. 45-60
45.19411 In general ...................................................................................... 45-60
45.19412 Existing case law ......................................................................... 45-60
45.1942 Presumption that legislature knows that in the absence of amendment of statute, construction put on it by court will remain unchanged ............................................................ 45-61
45.1943 Presumption against implied repeal of statute (see sec. 45.441) ...................................................................................... 45-61
45.1944 Presumption that legislature chose terms carefully and precisely to convey intended meaning .................................. 45-61
45.1945 Presumption that legislature employs terminology consistent with that used by courts (see sec. 45.2941) .............. 45-61
45.1946 Presumptions relating to legislature's enactment of statute modeled on federal statute, but containing different language ...................................................................................... 45-62
45.19461 Presumption that, when state legislature has deliberately departed from broader language of federal statute that served as model for state statute, state legislature made deliberate choice to constrict statute's operation .................................................... 45-62
45.19462 Presumption that, when state legislature has deliberately adopted different language than that found in federal statute that served as model for state statute, state legislature made deliberate choice to create statute with different meaning ........................................ 45-62
45.1947 Presumption that when legislature alters the words of a statute, it must intend to change the statute's meaning ........ 45-62
45.1948 Other presumptions (cont'd) ............................................................... 45-62
45.19481 Presumption that legislature intended to pass constitutional law .............................................................................. 45-62
Presumption that legislature intends for statute to be interpreted in manner that advances purposes of statute .......................................................... 45-62
Presumption that legislature says what it means and means what it says .......................................................... 45-62
Other presumptions (cont'd) ....................................................................................................................... 45-62
Presumption that legislature intended to adopt common law definition of statutory term .......................... 45-62
Presumption that adoption of wording of statute from another jurisdiction carries with it previous judicial interpretations of the wording .............................................. 45-62
Presumption that, when Legislature uses different terms in statute, it intends terms to have different meanings .......................................................... 45-62
Presumption that legislature intended same word used in related statutes to have same meaning in both provisions .......................................................... 45-63
Presumption that Congress unlikely to have intended radical departure from past practice without expressly saying so .................................................. 45-63
Presumption that legislature deliberately chose language it used in statute .............................................. 45-63
Where particular language is included in one section of statute but omitted in another section of same statute, it is generally presumed that the legislature acted intentionally and purposely in the disparate inclusion or exclusion .............................................. 45-63
Presumption that where legislature adopts new law incorporating sections of prior law, legislature had knowledge of interpretation given to incorporated law .......................................................... 45-63
Presumption that, when legislature enacts verbatim provision of uniform act, intent of legislature is intent of drafters of uniform act .............................................. 45-63
Legislative acquiescence in judicial or administrative interpretation of statute .......................................................... 45-63
Judicial interpretation .................................................................................................................................. 45-63
In general .................................................................................................................................. 45-63
By failing to pass proposed legislation that would have overturned judicial interpretation ...................... 45-64
When appellate court has authoritatively construed statute, chosen construction becomes part of statute and is to be maintained unless and until the legislature either amends or repeals statute .......................................................... 45-64
Construction given to statute by supreme court becomes a part of statute unless legislature subsequently amends statute to effect change in it (see sec. 45.4795) .......................................................... 45-64
45.19515 Presumption that legislature knows that, in the absence of amendment of statute, construction put on it by court will remain unchanged (see sec. 45.1942) ................................................................. 45-64

45.1952 Administrative interpretation ................................................................. 45-64

45.1953 Attorney general's interpretation ........................................................... 45-64

45.196 Other principles of construction ............................................................................. 45-64

45.1961 New statutes construed in light of prior statutes on same subject ................................................................. 45-64

45.1962 Construction to be made in light of evil sought to be remedied ................................................................. 45-65

45.1963 When statute contains particular provision, omission of such provision from similar statute concerning related subject shows that different intention existed with respect to that similar statute ................................................................. 45-65

45.1964 Propriety of considering later-enacted laws (e.g., later amendments or additions to statute under consideration) ........................................ 45-65

45.1965 Amendment of statute that neither declares meaning of, nor seeks to clarify, earlier law fails to provide interpretive guidance ................................................................. 45-65

45.1966 In absence of limiting language, court will not restrict unqualified language ................................................................. 45-65

45.1967 When legislature has wanted list in statute to be non-exclusive, it has so stated in statute ................................................................. 45-65

45.1968 Legislation must be interpreted in light of common law and scheme of jurisprudence existing at time of enactment ........................................ 45-65

45.1969 Determining reach or effect of qualifying or limiting words and phrases ................................................................. 45-65

45.19691 In general ................................................................. 45-65

45.19692 Principle of "last preceding antecedent" or "rule of last antecedent": qualifying or limiting words and phrases are deemed to refer only to immediately preceding antecedent, unless contrary legislative intent appears ................................................................. 45-66

45.19693 Use of principles stated in LRB's Bill Drafting Manual to determine reach or effect of qualifying or limiting words or phrases ................................................................. 45-66

45.19694 Reach or effect of adverb modifying transitive verb with object (see sec. 45.1978) ................................................................. 45-66

45.197 Other principles of construction (cont'd) ................................................................. 45-66

45.1971 Adoption of wording of statute from another jurisdiction carries with it previous judicial interpretations of the wording (see sec. 45.19492) ................................................................. 45-66

45.1972 Liberal construction of statute should not be adopted if it defeats legislative purpose ................................................................. 45-66

45.1973 Effect of differences in statutes under consideration as part of same legislation ................................................................. 45-66

45.1974 When description of obligation imposed by statute contains word "including," obligation extends beyond that described following the word "including" ................................................................. 45-66
45.1975 When same word is used in neighboring subsections, it should generally be given same meaning in each subsection (see sec. 45.298) ................................................................. 45-66
45.1976 Words or phrases appearing in the same statute should be given the same meaning each time they are used (see sec. 45.297) ......................................................................................................... 45-66
45.1977 Statute must be read in its proper context ............................................ 45-66
45.1978 Where transitive verb in statute has object, adverb that modifies transitive verb applies to entire action described in statute including object of verb ............................................................... 45-66
45.19782 When adverb is "knowingly" (see sec. 31.133) .................... 45-66
45.1979 Party contending that legislative action has changed settled law has burden of showing that legislature intended such change ......................................................................................................... 45-66
45.198 Other principles of construction (cont’d) ............................................................... 45-67
45.1981 Implied repeal not favored (see sec. 45.441) ......................................... 45-67
45.1982 Lack of limiting language in statute precludes court from imposing limitations on its scope or application ............................................................... 45-67
45.1983 Effect of statutory provision providing that statute is to be liberally construed ......................................................................................................... 45-67
45.1984 Effect of legislature’s failure to enact particular provision ............. 45-67
45.1985 When legislature has demonstrated that it is capable of imposing certain requirement in other statutory provisions, absence of language imposing that requirement in statute under construction indicates legislature did not intend to impose such requirement in statute under construction ............................................................... 45-67
45.1986 Court may not rewrite statute ......................................................................................................... 45-67
45.1987 Construction should not render another or related statute inoperative or meaningless ......................................................................................................... 45-67
45.1988 Verb tense is significant in construing statute ...................................... 45-67
45.1989 Should not lightly be assumed that legislature intended to depart from a long established policy when it amended statute ......................................................................................................... 45-67
45.199 Other principles of construction (cont’d) ............................................................... 45-67
45.1991 Construction of statutory reference to statutory section that does not exist ......................................................................................................... 45-67
45.1992 Spirit and intention of statute should govern over literal meaning ......................................................................................................... 45-67
45.1993 Need to conform statute to sound public policy ...................................... 45-68
45.1994 Refusal to assume major policy change from silent statute .............. 45-68
45.1995 Court will not read into statute what is not there; court ordinarily resists reading words or elements into statute that do not appear on its face ......................................................................................................... 45-68
45.1996 Statutes not to be read in derogation of common law, unless intent to change common law clearly expressed (see sec. 45.152) ......................................................................................................... 45-68
45.1997 Court's right to rewrite statute to effectuate legislative intent .......... 45-68
45.19971 Court’s right to reject words, or read words into statute, in order to effectuate legislative intent (see sec. 45.1113) ................................................................. 45-68
45.19972 Court’s right to disregard grammatical errors or mistakes in statutes in order to effectuate legislative intent (see sec. 45.1116) ........................................... 45-68
45.1998 Other principles ................................................................. 45-68
45.19981 Court should give effect, if possible, to every clause and word of statute ................................................................. 45-68
45.19982 Canons of statutory construction are not mandatory rules, but guides designed to determine legislative intent; other circumstances evincing legislative intent can overcome their force ................................................................. 45-68
45.19983 Statute should be interpreted to fulfill objectives of statute .......................................................................................... 45-68
45.19984 Fact that statute was enacted in response to particular situation or circumstance does not necessarily mean that its application is limited to that situation or circumstance ............................................... 45-68
45.19985 Preamble to act does not necessarily control meaning of act; remedy enacted often extends beyond particular act or mischief which first suggested necessity of law ................................................................. 45-69
45.19986 Court applies statutes as they are written ........................................... 45-69
45.19987 Construction to dispense with mens rea unwarranted in absence of some indication of legislative intent .......................................................................................... 45-69
45.19988 Statute should be construed to avoid leaving gaps in it .......................................................................................... 45-69
45.1999 Other principles (cont’d) ................................................................. 45-69
45.19991 Plain, obvious and rational meaning of statute is always to be preferred to any curious, narrow, or hidden sense .......................................................................................... 45-69
45.19992 It is policy of state legislature and not United States Congress that court must follow when it interprets Wisconsin statutes ................................................................. 45-69
45.19993 Plain meaning of statute takes precedence over all extrinsic sources and rules of construction (see sec. 45.125) .......................................................................................... 45-69
45.19994 When faced with plain language, court applies plain language unless such application would lead to absurd or unreasonable results (see sec. 45.123) .......................................................................................... 45-69
45.19995 Court will not read words into statute is statute has clear meaning on its face (see sec. 45.126) ................. 45-69
45.19996 Use of LRB’s Bill Drafting Manual to determine meaning of statute .......................................................................................... 45-69
45.19997 Court should not add words to a statute to give it a certain meaning .......................................................................................... 45-69
45.19998 Congress generally legislates with domestic concerns in mind .................................................. 45-69
45.19999 Statutes should not be read as series of unrelated and isolated provisions ................................. 45-70

45.2 Meaning Of Language .................................................................................................................. 45-70

45.21 Words To Be Given Common, Ordinary, and Accepted Meaning ................................................. 45-70
45.212 Use of dictionary definition ......................................................................................................... 45-74
45.2121 In general .................................................................................................................................. 45-74
45.2122 Statute need not be ambiguous before court may resort to dictionary for definition of its terms .................................................................................................................. 45-76
45.2123 Dictionary cannot always be relied on to supply meaning of term; focus must remain on ascertaining definition consistent with legislative intent .................................................................................................................. 45-76
45.2124 When word has multiple dictionary definitions, applicable definition depends on context in which word is used, including purpose of statute in which it is used (see sec. 45.214) .................................................................................................................. 45-76
45.213 Use of legal dictionary to determine meaning .................................................................................. 45-76
45.214 When word has multiple common, ordinary, and accepted meanings, applicable meaning depends on context in which word is used, including purpose of statute in which it is used .................................................................................................................. 45-77
45.215 Common, ordinary and accepted meaning can be established by case law .............................................. 45-77
45.216 Statutory codification of this principle (Wis. Stat. § 990.01(1)) .................................................. 45-77
45.22 Technical Words Or Phrases .......................................................................................................... 45-77
45.23 When Word Defined By Statute ...................................................................................................... 45-78
45.232 When definition contains word "includes" .................................................................................. 45-78
45.233 Use of definition of word that legislature has specifically provided for that word when it is used in related statute (i.e., statute in same chapter as statute under consideration) to determine meaning of word when used in statute under consideration (see sec. 45.2983) .................................................................................................................. 45-79
45.24 Words To Be Interpreted In Light Of Associated Words (Noscitur A Sociis) ................................. 45-79
45.241 In general .................................................................................................................................. 45-79
45.242 This canon of statutory construction does not apply when specific words listed do not have similar meaning .................................................................................................................. 45-79
45.25 Meaning To Be Derived From Statute As A Whole, i.e., From Statutory Context In Which Words Are Placed .................................................................................................................. 45-79
45.251 In general .................................................................................................................................. 45-80
45.252 When word has multiple meanings, applicable definition depends on context in which word is used .................................................................................................................. 45-81
45.253 Because statutes are not read as collection of isolated phrases, word in statute may or may not extend to outer limits of its definitional possibilities (see sec. 45.2984) .................................................................................................................. 45-81
45.26 Expressio Unius Est Exclusio Alterius ............................................................................................ 45-81
45.261 In general .................................................................................................................................. 45-81
45.262 When legislature specifically enumerates certain exceptions to statute, court will conclude that legislature intended to exclude any other exception ................................................................. 45-82

45.27 General Word, When Following Or Preceding List Of Specifics, Is Interpreted To Include Only Items Of Same Type As Those Listed (Ejusdem Generis) ............... 45-82
45.272 When specific terms do not suggest particular class, rule of ejusdem generis does not apply .................................................. 45-82

45.28 Meaning Of Particular Words .................................................................................................... 45-82
45.281 Everyday words commonly interpreted as part of statutory construction .................................................. 45-82
45.2811 "Shall"; is it mandatory or directory? ................................................................................ 45-82
45.2812 "May" ........................................................................................................................................ 45-83
45.2813 "And" ...................................................................................................................................... 45-84
45.28131 In general ......................................................................................................................... 45-84
45.28132 May be given disjunctive meaning; may be read as "or" .................................................. 45-84
45.2814 "Or" ...................................................................................................................................... 45-84
45.2816 "Any" ..................................................................................................................................... 45-84
45.2818 "Result" ............................................................................................................................... 45-84
45.2819 Other words .......................................................................................................................... 45-84
45.28191 "Purpose" ......................................................................................................................... 45-85
45.28192 "Means" ............................................................................................................................. 45-85

45.282 Words relating to crimes and criminal liability in general (see sec. 31.5) ........................................... 45-85
45.283 Words relating to crimes against children (see sec. 38.61) ....................................................... 45-85
45.284 Words relating to procedural matters (see sec. 12.71) .............................................................. 45-85
45.285 Words relating to gambling crimes (see sec. 38.52) ........................................................................ 45-85
45.286 Words relating to traffic offenses (see sec. 37.12) ...................................................................... 45-85
45.287 Words relating to sentencing (see sec. 9.492) ............................................................................. 45-85
45.288 Words relating to sexually violent person (ch. 980) commitments (see sec. 10.791) ................. 45-85
45.289 Words relating to other matters (see sec. 47.871) ..................................................................... 45-85

45.29 Other Principles And Matters Relating To Meaning Of Language .................................................. 45-85
45.291 Words to be given meaning they have in other statutes .......................................................... 45-85
45.292 Singular and plural; singular includes the plural ....................................................................... 45-85
45.293 Terms connected by disjunctive "or" to be given separate meanings ........................................ 45-85
45.294 Presumptions with respect to legislature's use of particular language ....................................... 45-85
45.2941 Legislature is presumed to employ terminology consistent with that used by courts ................. 45-85
45.2942 When legislature uses similar but different terms in statute, it is presumed that legislature intended those terms to have different meanings (see sec. 45.2962) .................................................. 45-86
45.2943 Legislature presumed to have intended to adopt common law definition of statutory term (see sec. 45.19491) .................................................. 45-86
45.2944 Presumption that legislature chose terms carefully and precisely to express its meaning (see sec. 45.1944) .................................................. 45-86
45.2945 Legislature is presumed to have intended words to have their precise meanings ....................................................... 45-86
45.295 Statutory term is generally accorded common-law meaning .......................................................... 45-86
45.2951 In general ................................................................................................................................. 45-86
45.2952 This maxim applies only to a statutory term, not to a statutory scheme that is analogous to a common-law scheme ................................................................. 45-86
45.296 Different words to be given different meanings ................................................................. 45-86
45.2961 In general ................................................................................................................................. 45-86
45.2962 When legislature uses similar but different terms in statute, it is presumed that legislature intended those terms to have different meanings ................................................................. 45-86
45.297 Words or phrases appearing in several places in same statute should be given same meaning each time they appear ................................................................. 45-86
45.298 Other principles and matters .................................................................................................. 45-87
45.2981 When same word or same language is used in neighboring subsections, it should generally be given same meaning in each subsection ................................................................. 45-87
45.2982 Use of case law from other states to determine meaning of words in statute ................................................................. 45-87
45.2983 When judicial interpretations have settled on meaning of existing statutory provision, subsequent repetition of same language in new statute indicates, as general matter, legislature's intent to incorporate those judicial interpretations as well ................................................................. 45-87
45.2984 Because statutes are not read as collection of isolated phrases, word in statute may or may not extend to outer limits of its definitional possibilities ................................................................. 45-87
45.2985 Use of definition of word that legislature has specifically provided for that word when it is used in related statute (i.e., statute in same chapter as statute under consideration) to determine meaning of word when used in statute under consideration ................................................................. 45-87
45.29851 In general ................................................................................................................................. 45-87
45.29852 But legislature's failure to specify that term used in one statute has same meaning given that term in another statute, when legislature has so specified elsewhere, indicates legislature did not intend term to have that meaning (see sec. 45.2992) ................................................................. 45-87
45.299 Other principles and matters (cont’d) .................................................................................. 45-87
45.2991 Construing time limits in statutes as regulatory or directory (see sec. 12.783) ................................................................. 45-87
45.2992 Legislature's failure to specify that term used in one statute has same meaning given that term in another statute, when legislature has so specified elsewhere, indicates legislature did not intend term to have that meaning ................................................................. 45-87
45.2993 Language of one subsection should be construed to be consistent with identical language in other subsections of same statute ................................................................. 45-88
45.2994 Resort to Wisconsin Administrative Code for guidance in defining terms used in statutes ............................................................... 45-88
45.2995 When words of court are used in later statute governing same subject matter, words should be given same meaning in absence of specific direction to the contrary .................................. 45-88
45.2996 Meaning of reference to other statutory section ....................... 45-88
45.29961 In general ................................................................................. 45-88
45.29962 Number of particular section is simply shorthand means of describing or designating substance of that section ................................................................. 45-88
45.29963 Construction of statutory reference to section that does not exist (see sec. 45.1991) ................................................................. 45-88
45.2997 Same word may have different meanings in varying contexts ........................................................................................................... 45-88
45.2998 When word has multiple meanings, applicable definition depends on context in which word is used, including purpose of statute in which it is used (see secs. 45.214 and 45.252) ......................................................................................................................... 45-88
45.2999 Propriety of giving same word in statute different meaning in different cases .................................................................................. 45-88

45.3 Extrinsic Aids To Interpretation ............................................................... 45-88
45.31 Propriety Of Resort To Extrinsic Aids To Interpretation: Statute Must Be Ambiguous; When Statutory Language Is Plain, It Is Interpreted According To Its Terms ........................................................................................................................................................................... 45-88
45.311 General rule ........................................................................................................... 45-88
45.3111 In general ................................................................................................... 45-88
45.3112 Dissent questioning validity of general rule ......................................... 45-95
45.3113 Decisions suggesting that resort to extrinsic aids (in particular, legislative history) may be appropriate even in absence of ambiguity ........................................................................................................... 45-95
45.312 When statute is ambiguous: statutory language is ambiguous when it can be understood in two or more senses by reasonably well-informed persons ........................................................................................................... 45-95
45.313 Disagreement on meaning of statute between parties or between party and trial court does not necessarily render statute ambiguous (see sec. 45.133) ........................................................................................................... 45-95
45.314 Cannot resort to notes or comments to statute to override clear meaning of statute ........................................................................................................... 45-95
45.315 Ambiguity may be created by interaction of two related provisions or two separate statutes; interaction of two or more statutes can operate to create ambiguity ........................................................................................................... 45-95
45.316 Court may look to legislative history to reinforce conclusion that statute is indeed unambiguous (see sec. 45.3182) ........................................................................................................... 45-96
45.317 Statute need not be ambiguous before court may resort to dictionary for definition of its terms (see sec. 45.2122) ........................................................................................................... 45-96
45.318 Impact of legislative history of statute on question of ambiguity ........................................................................................................... 45-96
45.3181 Legislative history of statute cannot be used to create ambiguity ........................................................................................................... 45-96
45.3182 Legislative history of statute can be invoked to demonstrate that statute is not ambiguous and that court has properly interpreted it ............................................................................................................. 45-96
45.3183 Legislative history may be examined to determine plain meaning of statute (see sec. 45.1124) ............................................................................................................. 45-96
45.319 Other matters ........................................................................................................................................................................ 45-96
45.3191 Statute may be rendered ambiguous by context in which it is sought to be applied ................................................................................................................................. 45-96
45.3192 Clear and unambiguous statute may be construed if literal application would lead to absurd or unreasonable result ......................................................................................................... 45-96
45.3193 Ambiguity may be created by statute's placement in statute book ................................................................................................................................. 45-96
45.3194 Ambiguity not required before court may examine scope, context, or purpose of statute as long as the scope, context, and purpose are ascertainable from text and structure of statute itself, rather than from extrinsic sources, such as legislative history ................................................................................................................................. 45-96
45.3195 LRB's Bill Drafting Manual is not extrinsic aid to interpretation to which resort may only be made when ambiguity exists ................................................................................................................................. 45-96
45.3196 Extrinsic sources may be consulted to confirm or verify plain-meaning interpretation of statute ................................................................................................................................. 45-97
45.3197 Even when statute is unambiguous, legislative history may be consulted to confirm plain-meaning interpretation of statute ................................................................................................................................. 45-97
45.3198 Word is not ambiguous merely because it is general enough to encompass more than one set of circumstances (see sec. 45.1394) ................................................................................................................................. 45-97
45.3199 Depending on facts of case, same statute may be found ambiguous in one setting and unambiguous in another ................................................................................................................................. 45-97
45.32 Legislative History In General ................................................................................................................................................................................................. 45-97
45.321 In general ................................................................................................................................................................................................. 45-97
45.322 Legislative history not anchored to text of statute does not have authoritative weight ................................................................................................................................................................................................. 45-98
45.323 When more specific statute governs situation, court need not examine legislative history of more general statute ................................................................................................................................................................................................. 45-98
45.324 Murky legislative history should not be permitted to undermine plain statutory language ................................................................................................................................................................................................. 45-98
45.325 Court may consult legislative history, even if statute is not ambiguous, to show that it supports court's interpretation of statute otherwise clear on its face (see secs. 45.1352 and 45.3182) ................................................................................................................................................................................................. 45-98
45.326 If statute is plain and unambiguous on its face, court will not look to legislative history as guide to its meaning ................................................................................................................................................................................................. 45-98
45.327 Legislative history may be examined to determine plain meaning of statute (see sec. 45.1124) ................................................................................................................................................................................................. 45-98

45.4 Other Matters Relating To Statutory Construction .................................................................. 45-107
45.41 Appellate Review Of Statutory Construction ....................................................................... 45-107
45.411 Construction of statute is question of law subject to independent review by appellate court ......................................................................................................................... 45-107
45.412 Application of statute is question of law subject to independent review by appellate court ......................................................................................................................... 45-125
45.413 Whether statute is ambiguous is question of law subject to independent review by appellate court ......................................................................................................................... 45-130
45.414 Whether particular act is authorized by statute is question of law subject to independent review by appellate court ......................................................................................................................... 45-130
45.42 Applicability Of Statute To (1) Past Act Or (2) Pending Prosecution: Does Statute Have Retroactive Application Or Does It Have Prospective Effect Only? ............................................................................... 45-130
45.421 General Principles ..................................................................................................... 45-130
45.4211 In general ........................................................................................................ 45-130
45.4212 When act makes particular provision in it retroactive, there is negative inference that other provisions are not retroactive ......................................................................................................................... 45-131
45.4213 When application of statute is triggered by commencement of case, relevant case for statute directed to appeals is one initiated in appellate court ......................................................................................................................... 45-131
45.4214 When act makes provision applicable to pending proceeding ........................................ 45-131
45.4215 Procedural statutes are generally given retroactive application ......................................................... 45-131
45.422 Particular applications ................................................................. 45-131
45.4221 Forfeiture of vehicle with removed, altered, or obliterated VIN which was seized before effective date of statute authorizing seizure does not constitute retroactive application of statute (see sec. 47.1922) ........................................... 45-131 45.4222 Expungement provision of juvenile justice code (see sec.
42.94) ......................................................................................................... 45-131
45.4223 Applying new standard for ch. 980 commitment to trial commenced after effective date of legislation creating that standard even if petition was filed prior to that date (see

45.4232 Due process limitations (see sec. 22.872) ......................... 45-131
45.43 Titles, Captions, and Headings in Statutes ............................................ 45-131
45.431 In general ........................................................................................ 45-131
45.432 Section title or caption is not part of statute ......................... 45-132
45.433 Titles may be considered in resolving doubt as to statute's meaning, but should not be used to create doubt where none would otherwise exist ...................................................................................................................... 45-132
45.434 Title of statute cannot limit plain meaning of text ............... 45-132 45.435 To extent they are inconsistent, court must be guided by words of statute, not by common meaning of statute's title ................................. 45-132
45.44 Repeal Of Statute ..................................................................................... 45-132
45.441 Implied repeal of statute ................................................................. 45-132
45.442 Effect of repeal of statute creating criminal liability or penalty for 45.4422 Application of this statute to change in penalty for continuing crime when course of conduct constituting continuing crime commences prior to date of penalty change, but concludes after that date ........................................ 45-133

45.45 In Construing Statute, Court Is Law Interpreter, Not Lawmaker; It Is Not Court's Role To Legislate ........................................................................... 45-133
45.451 In general ........................................................................................ 45-133
45.452 Power to construe statute does not include power to amend or rewrite it ......................................................................................................... 45-133
45.4521 In general ........................................................................................ 45-133
45.4522 Court may not rewrite plain language of statute even when plain language appears at odds with general purpose of statute .............................................................................................................. 45-133 45.4523 Court is not free to rewrite statute even though potential for harsh results exists ......................................................................................... 45-133
45.453 Whether statute is wise or unwise is not for court to say ........... 45-133 45.454 Public policy considerations, and public policy arguments in favor of particular construction, must be addressed to legislature, not to appellate court ............................................................................................... 45-134 45.455 If statute fails to cover particular situation and omission should be cured, remedy lies with legislature, not the courts .............................. 45-134
45.456 Need to conform statute to sound public policy (see sec. 45.1993) .......... 45-134
45.457 Court should not give statute meaning not justified by its language merely to avoid inequitable or unwise results .................................................... 45-134
45.458 Appellate court will refrain from interpreting or rewriting statute solely to comport with public policy .................................................................... 45-134
45.459 Other principles ...................................................................................................... 45-134
45.4591 Where complex and controversial public policy considerations are at work, it is appropriate for courts to defer to legislature .................................................................................. 45-134
45.4592 It is function of legislature, not courts, to remedy effect of judicial practices which may be unwise, yet comply with existing law .......................................................... 45-134
